"DOWN WITH BABY STARVERS!" DEMONSTRATION IN COMMONS

DISGRACEFUL ATTACK ON PREMIER

London, Jan. 28.
One of the most violent disturbances ever to occur in the public gallery of the House of Commons broke out to-night during the debate on the supplementary estimate for £5,000,000 to be voted towards the newly-created Unemployment Assistance Board, in order to standardise throughout the country the rates of assistance for able-bodied unemployed who have exhausted their unemployment benefits.

The Government's proposals were warmly criticised on the ground that they were inadequate by the Labourite, Mr. George Buchanan of Glasgow, who started the House by a virulent attack on the Premier, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, who was not present.

Mr. MacDonald was described as a mountebank, a swine, a low and dirty cur, who ought to be horse-whipped and slung out of public life.

Mr. Buchanan's outburst was followed by an outrageous scene in the public gallery where women rose screaming, "Down with the National Government!" "Down with the baby-starvers!"

The demonstrators were immediately ejected by the House of Commons officers, but others who had at first appeared docile enough and had not joined in the shouting, took up the game, and constantly interrupted proceedings in the House.

Pandemonium ensued for some minutes. After sixty persons had been taken away and the shouting had not stopped, the Speaker finally ordered the whole gallery cleared.—Reuter.

No Disorder On Border

JAPANESE TROOPS WITHDRAWN

PLANS FOR PARLEY

Peking, Jan. 29.
A portion of Japanese troops stationed at the east of Tungchiao withdrew five miles to the east yesterday afternoon, and a number of Japanese planes frequently flew over Kuyuan and Tushikow, but without dropping bombs.

These were the main features of the Charhar border activities throughout yesterday. The foremost line held by the Japanese troops has been already moved beyond the disputed area, but the Chinese garrison forces are holding their original position in the eastern Charhar border area.

Colonel Matsui, Chief of the Japanese Military Mission at Kalgan, arrived at Changteh yesterday afternoon by air from Chinchow.

A final decision was expected, at a conference he held with General Sugihara at the Chengteh Japanese Military Headquarters last night, regarding the proposed Sino-Japanese Conference to be held for the settlement of the Charhar-Jehol border dispute.—Central News.

MR. ARIYOSHI'S VISIT

Shanghai, Jan. 28.
Mr. Ariyoshi, Japanese Minister to China, proceeded to Nanking to-night to pay an official visit to the Chinese authorities. He was accompanied by Mr. Arino, Counsellor of the Japanese Legation. His present visit to the Chinese capital is merely in connection with routine business.—Central News.

GOING HOME

London, Jan. 28.
Admiral Yamamoto, and other Japanese delegates and experts to the London naval conference recently abandoned, left for Tokyo to-day, via Moscow.—Reuter.

FRANCE SELLING DOLLARS

REVALUATION NOT LIKELY

BULLISH WAVE ABATING

Paris, Jan. 28.
Abatement of the bullish wave on foreign exchanges regarding the possible revaluation of the American dollar, is arousing widespread interest here.

In the opinion of the market experts, the fact that the Bank of France has been selling dollars in large amounts and is apparently willing to continue this policy, is taken as a sign of confidence on the part of the French authorities in the stability of the gold value of the dollar.

The Bank of France, it is pointed out, would be reluctant to part with any large portion of its dollar holdings at present if there were any likelihood of the dollar being restored to its old parity.—Reuter.

RETURNING TO MOSCOW

DR. W. W. YEN WILL LEAVE SHORTLY

Nanking, Jan. 28.
Dr. W. W. Yen, Chinese Ambassador to Moscow, who has been on a long furlough at home, arrived at the capital last evening for the purpose of asking instructions from the Central Government before his return to Moscow.

When interviewed he said that after much hesitation he was at last persuaded to return to his duties at Moscow. He would catch the same steamer for Moscow with Mr. Mui Lan-fang, the noted Chinese actor, who will undertake a theatrical tour to Soviet Russia at the invitation of the Soviet Government.

Dr. Yen will probably start on his journey late in February.—Central News.

SAAR FORCE DEPARTURE

DATE NOT YET FIXED

London, Jan. 28.
The actual date on which the International Force will leave the Saar has not yet been fixed.

The Foreign Secretary, Sir John Simon, answering a question in the Commons, said the various contingents were expected to leave at the same time as the Governing Commission handed over the territory to the German authorities. The arrangements, it was understood, would be discussed with the Commander-in-Chief, the Governing Commission and the Saar Committee of the League of Nations Council.—British Wireless.

TRANSPORT IN AMERICA

ROOSEVELT LOOKS FOR FLAWS

Washington, Jan. 28.
It is learned on good authority that President Roosevelt will soon send to Congress four messages concerning the nation's transportation facilities, making suggestions for their improvement.

The messages will deal in turn with aviation, shipping, highways and railroads.—United Press.

TRYING CROSS- EXAMINATION

POINTS FOR PROSECUTION

(Special to "Telegraph")
(The Telegraph Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1911. Received, January 29, 1.15 a.m.)

Flemington, Jan. 28.
The relentless pounding of questions, in an attempt to trip Bruno Hauptmann into contradictions, has brought a certain measure of success to Attorney General Willentz of New Jersey, prosecuting the charge of kidnapping and murder here.

Mr. Willentz to-day forced the prisoner, Hauptmann, to admit, first, that he kept false financial accounts in order to prevent his wife learning that he had money; and, second, that the alleged diary containing the word "boat," which the prosecution alleges means "boat," was really written in 1931, and not 1926, as Hauptmann first declared.

The prosecution is attempting to show that the misspelled words in the ransom notes, written by the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby three years ago, might have been Hauptmann's. Hauptmann has insisted that he is able to spell and that his diary, which contained many spelling errors, was written years ago, before he was so well acquainted with the English language.

FAILS IN TEST

The prosecution won its third point in the day's proceedings when Mr. Willentz put Hauptmann's spelling ability to the test. It was found that he was unable to spell certain words similar to those which were incorrectly written in the ransom notes.

The fourth point made by Mr. Willentz was gratifying to the State. Hauptmann had insisted that he had had money long before the kidnapping affair. Mr. Willentz forced him to admit that he had been unable to meet a $74 stock market margin requirement just prior to the kidnapping.

ADMITS LIE

Hauptmann admitted that he had lied when he told the Bronx District Attorney, Mr. Foley, that he had written Condon's telephone number on a board taken from his cupboard. He said he lied because, at that time, he was excited. He did not know what he was saying. He now claims he never wrote the numbers.

A moment later he lost his temper and shouted at Mr. Willentz: "You lied to me, mister." When upon, Mr. Willentz calmly forced him to admit that he had never talked to him outside the court room.

Hauptmann, towards the end of the session, resorted to general denials, or could not remember to answer other embarrassing questions.—United Press.

The Hon. Mr. N. L. Smith yesterday laid the foundation stone of a block of twenty houses which the Fung Wah Hospital authorities are erecting near the main hospital.

ENGLAND DEFEATED IN TEST

THRILLING FINISH

Port of Spain, Jan. 28.

Another sensational collapse by the English batsmen, saw the West Indies win the Second Test Match to-day by 217 runs after a thrilling finish. The last wicket fell when there was only half a minute left for play.

Outplayed from the time R. E. S. Wyatt decided to give the West Indies first knock, the English team was soundly beaten. Twice the keen West Indies' attack upset the leading batsmen, whereas the winners themselves scored comfortably. This result makes the countries level, England having won the first Test at Barbados.

When the West Indies resumed their second innings this morning they were 194 runs ahead with seven wickets in hand. On a good wicket, the batsmen continued to pile on the runs steadily. George Headley, not out 59 over-night, plodded along to score 93 in 220 minutes, before standing in front of a straight one from Smith. Headley, although playing correct cricket, was very subdued. His best hits were eight boundaries.

Subsequently Constantine and Rolfe Grant lived things up somewhat the former hitting up a valuable 31 and Grant 38. This enabled the West Indies to apply the declaration at lunch time with the score at 280 for 6, leaving England to amass 325 to win.

Wyatt sent in Townsend and Farrimond to open the English innings, but although the Derbyshire man stayed on to score 36, the rest of the team failed miserably. Smith was run out after scoring three and Hendren suffered a similar fate immediately after reaching double figures. Hammond, Wyatt and Ames left in quick succession, and although Leyland made a great effort to stem the tide, he left just before the end.

Iddon failed to score and amid tremendous excitement, the last English wicket dropped with but half an over to go.

Constantine followed up his batting performances with some great bowling which earned him three wickets for 11 runs in 14 overs, nine of which were maidens.

SOVIET'S GREAT PROGRESS

CONTINUED WAR ON REBEL ELEMENT

M. MOLOTOV BOASTS OF ARMY'S POWER

Moscow, Jan. 28.
M. Viacheslav Molotov, Chairman of the Council of People's Commissars, one of the most powerful men in Russia, opening the Seventh All-Union Congress of Soviets to-day, at which 2,000 delegates were present, challenged the foreign critics of the recent political executions which followed the murder of the official, Kirov.

He declared the Government would continue to mete out similar punishment to all its enemies of the same order, in spite of the protests from abroad.

M. Molotov said that Russia's relations with China were good. He denied foreign reports that the Soviet Union was attempting to Sovietise Sinkiang.

It was his opinion, he said, that some military elements in Japan wanted war, but the Soviet's defences had been strengthened, and she was not afraid.

He stressed the economic advance of Russia under Soviet administration, declaring that since 1929 the level of production had risen by 139 per cent, while it had fallen 24 per cent in the capitalist world.

BRITAIN ANXIOUS FOR PACT

STRIVING FOR NAVAL TREATY

REASSURED BY JAPAN

London, Jan. 28.
Reviewing the results of the recent preliminary bilateral naval conversations in London, the Prime Minister, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, in the House of Commons to-day, said they had fully served the purpose for which they were intended, namely, to enable the Governments concerned to understand their respective problems and viewpoints, and discuss a number of tentative suggestions for overcoming existing difficulties.

This process would continue through diplomatic channels and as soon as the situation developed so as to justify resumption, appropriate steps would be taken by His Majesty's Government.

Since adjournment the Japanese Government had given formal notice to terminate the Washington Naval Treaty. The British Government had realised for a long time that the prolongation of the treaty beyond 1936 would be contrary to the wishes of the Japanese Government; but he felt it to be only consonant with the frank and friendly spirit which always characterised relations between the two countries to say that the decisions of the Japanese Government in this matter had been received here with a sense of regret for the treaty had, during its term, served an invaluable purpose of avoiding naval armament competition with all its attendant evils of ill will and extravagance, and the British Government would regard it as a matter of grave concern if there should be a failure to negotiate before the Washington agreement terminated, for a new arrangement limiting and regulating the future construction of naval armaments.

SATISFACTION

It was therefore with great satisfaction that His Majesty's Government noted the assurance made to them by the Japanese Government that they had no intention whatever to proceed to naval aggrandisement or to disturb international peace, but would continue rather to make sincere endeavours to strengthen the relationship of peace and amity among all powers by participating in heretofore friendly negotiations with other powers concerned, and that they would strive for the conclusion with these powers of a new agreement which was fair, adequate and just in conception and consonant with the spirit of disarmament to replace the Washington Treaty.—British Wireless.

He admitted that the first five-year plan had not been completely fulfilled owing to the unforeseen increases in the expenditure for defence.

Some of the delegates to the Congress travelled hundreds of miles over ice with reindeer teams and dog-teams to attend the Congress.

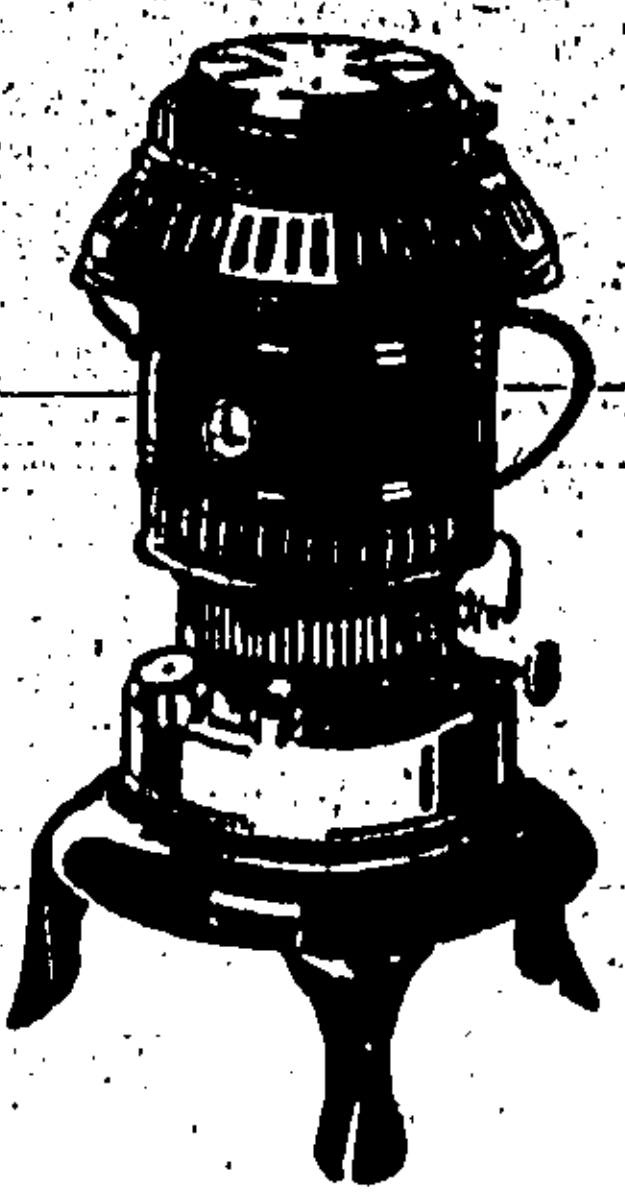

The 2,000 delegates cheered Stalin uninterruptedly for five minutes when the "Iron Master" appeared on the speaker's platform.—Reuter.

JAPAN'S PLACE IN THE WORLD

PROBLEMS MUST BE APPRECIATED

London.

Dr. S. Henslett, Bishop in South Tokyo, who is now in England on leave has declared that "the future of civilisation centres in the Pacific and the claims of Japan as a World Power cannot be ignored."

"Nothing would please the Japanese more than a better understanding of their national problems by the people of Great Britain. The occupation of Manchukuo was a case of doing the right thing—in the wrong way."

"Japan's anxiety in regard to China is that China may be and is likely to constitute a menace directly she is organised. Therefore Japan wishes to have a guiding hand in the organisation for defensive and peaceful reasons."

"I can safely affirm that the Japanese people want peace, and though Japan is unwilling to go to war with any nation, yet she will make war if driven to extremities, to procure safety for her nationals. The people are behind the Government in their Manchukuo policy. If Russia or America could crush Japan the effect would only last from ten to twelve years—the process would have to be continually repeated."

Constable's Error

HUNTING FOR STOLEN CAR

INNOCENT DRIVER

The hearing was concluded at York County Court recently of the case in which Joseph Southerton, manufacturers' agent, of Billet Road, Walthamstow, claimed £100 damages for injuries to himself and his motor-car when a police constable on the look-out for two stolen motor-cars swung a storm lamp through the windscreen and Southerton's face was cut by the glass.

The action was against Police constable Pickup, of the York Police. He was on the Dringhouses road, standing between red hurricane lamps, intercepting traffic in each direction. Southerton admitted seeing the lamps and a figure which he said he thought was that of a night watchman. He assumed that road repairs were in progress and was going to pass on his right when he found he could get through on the left and swerved back. A lamp was then lifted violently from the ground and came through his windscreen.

Police constable Pickup said that red lamps were the customary police night signal at York. He had stopped something like 20 cars previously that night by waving a lamp at them. He did the same in this case, and as the car swerved and came straight at him, so that he had to jump out of the way, he threw the lamp at the car to stop it, because he thought it was one of the stolen cars.

Judge Stewart gave judgment for Southerton with £75 damages and costs.

His Honour said that police officers had onerous duties to perform and on the whole performed them well, but in this case a young officer had got an inflated idea about this vehicle, and in his (Judge Stewart's) opinion his action would require a good deal of justification. His Honour referred to the dangerous consequences which might have ensued on ringing a lighted paraffin lamp at a moving car in order to stop it in such a way that it hit the windscreen carelessly and recklessly, and commented on the terrible menace which the deflection of the steering of cars in this way would constitute.

THOUSANDS ENJOY WINTER SPORT ANYONE CAN LEARN ON NURSERY SLOPES

By WILFRID TREMELLEN

Thousands of British people are travelling to Switzerland for the Winter Sports. Snow has at last fallen heavily in Switzerland, and the Sports are in full swing. Twice as many trains have been run from England as compared with last year.

"BUT," you object, "I've never seen a ski, except on my way through the millinery department—and then I didn't stop."

You may not have seen a luge, either, but it hardly matters. Because the winter sports folk are a choicest crowd, and it is difficult to feel a stranger among them. This jolly old man in the corner seat at Victoria constitutes himself your "uncle" as soon as you have given him permission to smoke, and although his labels show he is going to a different centre, what he does not know about the place you are bound for is negligible.

PLACE FOR BEGINNERS

On your first morning in Switzerland you go down to the village to select ski and sticks at the "Sport Shop." For two or three francs you can hire all you want for a fortnight. Your travelling companions of yesterday, all talking at once, explain how you find your right size, and soon you are all plunk-plunking down the frozen road towards the Nursery Slopes. It reminds you of the time when you were a child and tied date-boxes to your feet.

You climb a modest slope and shove yourself off with your sticks. Now you are whizzing down in fine style, breathless with the exhilaration of it until, after attaining what seems a fearful speed, you wobble, recover, wobble again and fall, losing your sticks and tumbling over and over. Astonishing! You sit up, wipe the snow from your eyes, and find that, though the mountains all seem to have changed places, you have not hurt yourself in the least.

EASY TO LEARN

After a few more descents you find that if you keep your knees "loose" they act as springs and you can keep your balance over the irregularities of the slope.

While you are struggling to your feet an old hand comes up with a word of advice. "The way to avoid falling," he says, giving you an arm, "is always to pretend to yourself that what you really want is to go much faster than you are actually going. It's kidding yourself, of course, but the psychological effect is immense."

Later on you will go on skiing excursions to the mountains, and the lunch you bring with you in your rucksack and eat in the silence of the forest slopes will be the most enjoyable of your life—especially if your guide lights a fire of fir-cones and makes glühwein. This is a delicious hot drink made with white wine, cinnamon and sugar boiled with snow.

LUGGING PARTIES

In the afternoons there are sometimes lugging parties. Then you, like everybody else in the hotel, drag your luge by its reins up to the top of the toboggan-run and, joining the queue, sit chatting on your mount until the man in front is sent off. One minute later the starter nods to you. At once you shove off over the lip of the descent and go whizzing down the steep ice-covered track.

It feels like hurtling down a long white tunnel, because you simply dare not raise your eyes at first, and see only the blur of the snow banked up on either side. Swift as the wind! Now comes a corner. You tug at the reins, and your feet scrabble frantically on the ice. You brake just sufficiently to avoid shooting up the bank, and then you are round the corner and whizzing down the straight. There is another corner, and then another, but you have got the hang of it now and soon feel confident enough to raise your eyes and enjoy the glorious mountains.

DON'T MISS THIS

You stay in your sports kit for tea—there will be music in the lounge—and later, after putting your damp gloves and socks on your bedroom radiator to dry, you bath and change for dinner.

There will be revelry afterwards—champagne, paper hats. Faul Jones and what-have-you. But do not omit to do this, on one riotous evening at least: steal away at some moment when the fun is greatest and the noise loudest and take a look at the moonlight on the eternal snow-clad mountains. It is freezing hard outside, but the stars are brilliant in the indigo sky and the pines stand like sentinels in the silence.

MONKS' ACTION FAILS

"TRAPPIST BEER" TRADE NAME

Brussels, Jan. 2. The Antwerp Commercial Court has non-suited the Trappist Fathers in a claim for 250,000 francs damages for unlawful competition made by them against a brewer of Brussels, near Antwerp, who sold beer under the name of Trappist Beer.

For the brewer it was contended that the name "Trappist" was not a special mark, but applied to several beers made in different

Trappist monasteries; that the Trappists were not traders, and therefore could not complain of competition on the part of a real trader.

The Court, in a closely reasoned judgment, agreed entirely with the brewer's submissions. It held that the Trappists were an association not for purposes of profit, and that their ideal was to live according to the precepts of St. Benedict, to do charitable work, and to propagate the Catholic Faith. Though it could be admitted that a religious community might carry on a trade to supply its charitable funds, it was inadmissible that such a community should place itself on the same footing as real traders, whose business was carried on exclusively for profit.

The Trappists were ordered to pay the costs of the action.

King Winter reigns in Switzerland again, and thousands of his loyal subjects are enjoying the multitude of sports at his court.

FURNITURE BY HIRE-PURCHASE

Leeds.

Further plans have been made in connexion with the £12,000,000 housing scheme of the Leeds Corporation.

Additional particulars of the hire-purchase furnishing plan which has caused so much comment have been given by the chairman of the Housing Committee, the Rev. C. Jenkinson, who indicated that the type of furniture under the hire-purchase agreement would be similar to that displayed in the exhibition houses. Everything which is considered essential in the way of furniture and furnishings is shown in a price-list which has been issued for complete furnishings on the hire-purchase system. A reduction is made where the tenant is in a position to pay cash.

It has also been decided to build flats to accommodate 800 families in the Quarry Hill district, which was until recently one of the slums of the city. The scheme is an ambitious one and includes a community centre, swimming baths and wash-houses, accommodation for perambulators, a central station for the disposal of refuse, 20 shops, and a children's bathing pool.

Another tender has been accepted, the Woolley Construction Company, Limited, of Leeds, having secured the contract for the erection of 208 dwellings at £76,692.

The chairman states that the lists of application for corporation houses have now had to be closed. No houses will be available apart from those needed for slum-clearance purposes and the 1,000 which are to be erected under the non-subsidy plan.

British Tommies (Top) receiving a jovial Nazi salute from Saar-landers as they prepared to take up their billets in Saarbrücken upon arrival to patrol the Saar valley during the League of Nations plebiscite period. They immediately began to make friends among the townsfolk who accorded them a cordial reception. Two of them are pictured below in difficulty over the language while picking out the inevitable picture postcards to send home.

The worst Canadian railway accident in 40 years occurred near the little town of Dundas, in the province of Ontario, as holiday celebrants returned to their homes Christmas night. A fast express train, swerving into a siding instead of passing on the main line, tore into the rear coaches of a holiday special, standing on the siding to allow the express right of way, reducing them to a mass of splintered wreckage, killing 12 and injuring 35. Frantic work in the early hours of the morning by railway wrecking crews, volunteers, doctors and nurses succeeded in saving many more lives. Above is shown a view of the debris after the huge locomotive tore its way through the excursion coaches.

"Now I Feel Like A New Woman!"

Mother Of Five In England Tells Of After-Maternity Troubles Ended and Health Restored By DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS.

Of the many trials that women are called upon to endure, perhaps there is none greater than that of motherhood. All too frequently this ordeal is followed by extreme weakness and much suffering. A case in point is that of Mrs. Allman, the mother of five children, of 965, Manchester Road, Over Hulton, near Bolton, England, who stated recently to a newspaper reporter:

"After my last baby was born about two years ago I failed to recover strength. I always felt wretchedly weak, and if I tried to do any work I had a severe pain over my heart. My nerves were in such a state that I dare not go out shopping. That was not the worst of it, for I suffered terribly from cramp in the night all through my body. I was so wracked with pain that I could not sleep."

"I tried various remedies, but derived no benefit, and then about four months ago my brother-in-law advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, as they had done his wife much good. I started taking the pills, and before long there was a decided improvement. This encouraged me to persevere with the pills. I continued to gain strength, and the cramp pains began to loosen until before long they went altogether."

"Now I am like a new woman. People remark what a wonderful change there is in me. Ever since a girl I suffered from anaemia, but now all traces of it have disappeared." Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, the world-renowned blood builder and nerve tonic, are equally good for weak, debilitated, nervous men as they are for women. Chemists everywhere sell them.

The following are the latest Hong-kong appointments announced in London:—Lt. Commander Gandy, R.N. (Retd.) late Harbour Surveyor, to be Land Surveyor, Public Works Department, Hongkong; Mr. E. S. Lambert, late Land Surveyor, Public Works Department, to be Assistant Superintendent of Surveys, Hongkong.

AVIATION
PROSPECTSFresh hopes of an understanding being reached between the Hongkong and Nanking Governments in regard to mutual flying
rights have been engendered by
the visit to the Colony of Mr.
Tai En-ki, the managing director of the China National Aviation Corporation. It is known that Mr. Tai has conferred with the local authorities on the subject, but, according to a statement which he made in Canton, nothing definite trans-
pired from the conversations,
as the subject is at present en-
Colonial Office and the Hongkong Government. The latter,
however, is said to be anxious
to come to an agreement on mutually satisfactory lines and
thus open up the Colony to aerial contact with China. It has long been known that the authorities here and in London
are desirous of overcoming the
present obstacles, and if Mr.
Tai's statement of the quid pro
quo which the Nanking Government would be prepared to offer
for the right to extend the
C.N.A.C. service to Hongkong
correctly represents the situation, it is reasonable to expect
an early adjustment of the outstanding issues. According to Mr. Tai, the Nanking Government would, in exchange for the right to bring its planes here,
grant permission for British planes to fly over Chinese territory on the projected Imperial Airways route from Singapore.
In such an event, says Mr. Tai,
there would be an exchange of mails and passengers as between the two services. Hitherto, it has been presumed that the Imperial Airways would provide
its own feeder service from

NOTES OF THE DAY

LOUISIANA REVOLT

To British people, report of a
"revolt" against the State administration in Louisiana by men who call themselves the "Square Dealers,"
seems an incredible thing. When two hundred citizens of a city the size of Baton Rouge arm themselves
with shotguns and threaten to fight
in order to put an end to the "arrogant dictatorship" of the faction led
by Senator Huey Long, it would seem that there must be something
very wrong with the political structure of Louisiana. Imagine two hundred fellows from Manchester
threatening the Council with shotguns! If it had occurred anywhere else in the United States it would have been called "revolution."But apparently that sort of thing is expected in Senator Long's part of the country. As a matter of fact
one cannot be surprised at anything
that happens there. Only recently Senator Long was at war with the New Orleans administration, allegedly because his party machine's
workings were interrupted by
officials who felt that the game of political patronage was being pushed too far. But in New Orleans, although the military was called out, there was never such a demonstration as this at Baton Rouge. The New Dealers are apparently business men, honest
fellows, and it will be a pity if their
demonstration does not arouse a higher authority than Senator Long
and put a stop to his foolery.

TO-MORROW'S TRAVEL

When the chairman of Imperial Airways announced that the constructional possibilities of civil aircraft go far beyond anything that
has been realised hitherto, he made
it plain that the limits to-day are determined only by what the public
is prepared to pay. If governments
were prepared to pay more for ground services and in subsidies,
and passengers to pay higher fares,
then quicker regular air services
could easily be provided between England and Australia and a safe
service between England and America. This sequel indicates that the recent dramatic air race
from England to Australia provided
one of those turning points which
have marked the history of air travel. If that transatlantic and transmarine journey to the Antipodes could be made in three days, why cannot the ordinary time
for air mail be reduced by 50 or more per cent? The answer seems to be that it can, if the cost will
be met.

NEW EXPERIMENTS

The race stirred public opinion in Britain. At once it became evident that the British people were demanding much faster and better inter-imperial communications.
And swiftly in answer to this demand came the announcement that Imperial Airways was ready to supply a regular seven-day service
from England to Australia for passengers and mails. But that was not all. It had become apparent that Britain was not willing to be behind hand in preparing for a regular transatlantic service. Imperial Airways is already experimenting with new types of monoplanes and also with composite vessels, consisting of a flying boat capable of lifting and launching into the air
a heavily laden seaplane. But it seems more likely that the solution
of the problem of regular services
between England and the United States will be found in the use of floating, anchored seadromes. Such
a service no longer holds out serious economic difficulties. It can become a success as soon as the
nations agree to co-operate in their use of the floating ports.the same time there have been indications that it might be prepared to work in with any
substantially British concern.
It remains to be seen whether
there are local interests willing
to come into the scheme. There
is, at any rate, guarantee of a subsidy by the local Government
if satisfactory arrangements
can be reached. But whatever
the eventual procedure may be,
it is essential that definite steps
be taken, without further delay,
in linking up this Colony with other aviation services. Incidentally, the C.N.A.C. is said
to have no knowledge of the American plans for a service
from San Francisco to Canton;
indeed, there is some doubt whether China would be prepared to come into such a scheme;
indications are that the C.N.A.C.
would prefer to establish its own link with Manila. However that may be, it is something to the good to realise that
the project of bringing Hongkong into aerial contact with
the outside world is now assuming more definite shape. Happily, we can count on the Hongkong Government doing all within its power to hasten the consummation of this much-needed
project.TO BARROW BY SLED DEERBy ELIZABETH FORREST
(In The Christian Science Monitor)FIVE o'clock of a morning early in May found us toiling up
a gentle incline before the clustered igloos of the Nekluk reindeer herd. All night we had been labouring across the level, snow-
cloaked tundra under the chill
brilliance of the circling sun. At each step my sealskin boots broke
through the thin, deceptive crust,
sank knee-deep in soft snow.
Warily I drew them out, only to thrust them in again, over and over—endlessly.At my side, Kitook, my sturdy little sled deer, his head drooping
under the weight of great branch-
ing antlers, mouth wide, snatching
a bite of snow from time to time, wallowed through soft drifts. The horizon line swept around us in a great, unbroken circle, bounding
the vast expanse of white. Not a sound broke the silence save the
pant of Kitook's loud breathing,
the sharp crackle of sinews above
the felloek. Nothing was visible upon the great white plain except
our three reindeer teams, strung
out, one behind the other, en route
from the home village of Wainwright to pay a friendly call upon
our nearest white neighbours at Barrow, 100 miles away.We had left Wainwright in the evening in order to give our sled
deer, in their shaggy winter coats,
the benefit of the cooler hours of
night. We should not have set out at all; for snow had recently
covered the tundra to a depth of
several inches, and neither blizzard
nor freeze had yet packed it to good sledding. But we had not seen a white face in many months.
School was over for the year, and
the date long set for our Barrow
visit had arrived. Our grub box
was packed to overflowing with frozen beans, bread sliced and buttered before freezing, chunks of roast reindeer, cookies, and doughnuts. Our sled deer had been brought in two days' journey from the lay Cape herd. All was in readiness. In spite of a trail that should have kept us at home, therefore, my husband and I, with our Eskimo guide, Tautuk, had set out
—and regretted it for eight exhausting hours.Never was sight more welcome than the Nekluk igloos—shapeless
mounds of white from which black
stove-pipes thrust out aslant.
Along a near-by snow ridge stretched the herd, a mass of hundreds of dun, brown and spotted deer, their
antlers silhouetted against the sky
line like a tangle of winter branches.
No human life was visible,
but out from the igloo entrances
dashed a bevy of short-legged,
sharp-eared little reindeer dogs,
disputing our approach."You go in here, Sevek's igloo,"
said Tautuk, as he unloaded our
dunnage before the largest mound.
"I look moss—stake out sled deer."
As Tautuk trudged away to perform the Arctic equivalent of car
parking, we turned to the igloo
indicated. Bent nearly double, we dragged our grub box and sleeping
bags in through a long hallway of
snow blocks, pushed under a heavy
dogskin curtain, and entered the igloo. Coming from the glare of sun on snow outside into the dim
light filtering through seal intestine window overhead, at first we could distinguish nothing. Presently, however, we made out ceiling, walls and floor of handwoven
driftwood with, in one corner,
among a heap of skins and robes,a huddle of sleepers. Near by a Lapp reindeer dog growled omin-
ously above her litter of pups.
And in the centre of the floor, a freshly netted seal, its hide stripped back to expose the creamy blub-
ber underneath, awaited the next meal.The sleepers breathed heavily on,
undisturbed, while, stooping in the
low space, we dragged our sleeping bags to one corner of the igloo.
Although we had not eaten in many
hours, sleep was the paramount
need. Stripping of outer garments,
we wriggled awkwardly into the depths of our bags. The floor was hard and very irregular. The reindeer hair of my bag prickled body
and unburned face; but I fell immediately into deep sleep.Hours later I was awakened by the odour of boiling seal meat, and
opened one eye for a surreptitious peek. Squinting about a pan on the igloo floor were some dozen men, women and children, conversing in low, guttural murmurs.
As I watched, Tautuk reached over
and, with the ivory-handled knife
that he carried always in his belt, appeared a chunk of seal meat from the pan. Sevek's wife raised a muted outcry, forced the portion
back into the common pot, and
carefully chose a choicer portion
for her guest. Tautuk raised the piece of half-raw meat, seized it
in his teeth and, with a deft stroke
of his short knife, slashed off a suitable bite.An exclamation from the shrivel-
ed old grandmother turned my eyes
in her direction. She had risen stiffly to her feet and hurried to
the seal oil lamp against the wall.
Its flame was burning low with the yellowish tinge that indicated lack
of oxygen. Sevek's wife, Anga,
reached over and pulled the rags
from the lower end of the two-
inch ventilating pipe, and the old
grandmother skillfully built up the
wick along the rim of the oval
stone basin. Soon the flame leaped up afresh, and the lump of seal
blubber above it began dripping
rapidly into the bowl. Light,
warmth and the fumes of burning
seal oil filled the igloo.Unable longer with my empty stomach to endure the mingled odours, I drew myself to a sitting posture. At once all eyes turned in my direction. Then all faces broke into smiles and a chorus of guttural delight greeted us.
Eagerly they crowded about the sleeping bags to shake our hands.Anga hurried to a sealskin line
above the stove and took from it
my fur garments. Mittens, socks
and boots had been turned inside
out, carefully dried of melting
snow and perspiration, and rubbed
soft and pliable as velvet. A rip
in one fawnskin sock had been
mended with tiny parallel stitches
of sinew, and a tear in the parka
sleeve had been neatly patched.
Thus, from our earliest recorded
history has the igloo hostess cared
for her transient guest.An hour later, fed, warmed, rested, with fresh deer, we were
once more on our way to Barrow.
Travel was now slightly better,
30-below-zero temperature and a strong wind having packed the
loose snow and tightened the crust.
We travelled, too, for a great part
of the night upon the frozen sea.
Here the deer stretched out their

The Very Idea!

OUR SILLY SYMPHONY
By Horatio Bogg, MillionaireThis pointed allusion by owners
of missing dogs to an unorthodox
diet being practised in Hongkong,
has given us the very idea—and a dreadful one.Ring the bell in our palatial Peak mansion we send for the chef
whom we brought back from our last pleasure trip to Paris."Alphonse," we ask "have you got anything to do with these missing dogs?"He depreciates the suggestion with a characteristic shrug of his shoulders.

"Rien de tout," he replies.

"All right, Alphonse; you are acquitted."A well-meaning fellow is Alphonse, the best cook it is possible
to get anywhere. He does everything with the best of intentions,
but there have been times when
these get the better of his judgment.Take, for instance, the dinner we gave on our last birthday.Having the previous day accumulated another cool million on a favourable turn of the exchange,
this with no other effort than being
wheeled into it in a 3 coolie-power
ricksha, we thought the occasion a jolly good one for boosting our
luck and the sumptuous appointments of our table. We were to be favoured also with the cream of Hongkong society—tailpans and Civil Servants.The morning of the banquet, therefore, we sent for Alphonse."I want you to make to-night's your very best effort," we told him.If anything, Alphonse is a master in his own line. You may prate of your portrait masterpieces, and your Frimls may keep the best they can compose of the enchanting
beauties of Hongkong, but Alphonse
has his own artistic conceptions of
the more substantial delights of cuisine.In his ha. as an ordinary enough steak is transformed into something surpassingly sublime—a perfect symphony of culinary perfection, to be approached with reverence rather than with gusto.For this our birthday banquet we gave him carte blanche, and he promised us a whole opera.What the nature of the various compositions were we had then not
the foggiest notion as they were to be shown in French on the
menu—a la this and a la that, you know. But it was evidence of our perfect trust and faith in Alphonse, the fact that we left
their entire selection to him, with
only the proviso that they must in any event be substantial.The banquet turned out to be a signal success. The wines were good; and Alphonse's well-varied
collations were all enjoyed, the
more so, we take it, because everything was a surprise. If they could do so without breaking good
form, we believe the guests would have been loud in their praise.The newspapers, in reporting it, also did us the honour of including it amongst the most brilliant social functions of the season, and we wondered what the Smiths and Joneses, who were not invited,
would think of it.The next day we sent for Alphonse to congratulate him on his masterpiece. Pointing to
"grenouille" in the previous night's dinner card, we remarked that the chicken was particularly good."But M'sieur," he interjected,
"that was not chicken: it was zee
ah—"Not here getting the right word, Alphonse gave a spasmodic leap to demonstrate what he wished to convey."FROGS! You have not been feeding us with frogs, have you, Alphonse?" we asked in dismay.Alphonse spread out his extended hands. "Mafs out," he asserted.Ever since that day we have insisted on these symphonies being
explained to us before allowing Alphonse to compose them."Don't you see, Marge? Deducting those eggs you borrowed from me yesterday, I only owe you 30 cents."

BIG BADMINTON MATCH TO-MORROW

Final Ladies' Hockey Trial

TO-DAY'S GAME

By R.H.B.

It is understood that Miss Iris Woolley, the St. Andrew's Club right half-back, who has been playing very well at left half in the interport trial and practice matches, is to be given a try out at left back in the Colony team at Sookunpoo this afternoon.

Miss M. Remedios, of the Recreio, will again be seen in action on the left-wing. She has been nursing an injured hand and has not taken part in the last two trials. On her play, though, she has proved herself a worthy candidate for the left wing vacancy.

For the position of left back, Miss F. Walker, Miss B. Hebbington and Miss A. Fowler have already been tried, while Miss P. Gittins and Miss O. Brown have been tested for left wing.

The Shanghai Ladies arrive on Friday and a week from to-day the interport match—the first in the history of local ladies' hockey—will be played. The selectors will have to make their final selections to-day or it will be leaving matters too late.

Boy Beats A Billiards Record

By FRANK POXON

London, Jan. 3. A little boy of 14 made a break of 130 yesterday afternoon in the semi-final of the Boys' Championship of billiards at the Burroughes Hall.

He did it in just less than a quarter of an hour.

The boy, Donald Cruickshank, of South Shields, looked the "complete player".

His opponent was H. Stokes, of Glasgow. Both boys wore knickerbockers.

This 130 break is a record for the Boys' Championship, the previous best, in this event, being 114 by R. Gartland when playing in the final against Sidney Lee—now a professional—in 1926.

Cruickshank played great billiards while making his record break. His losing hazards were perfect, the plumb centre of the pocket being found nine times out of ten.

That was just good—very good—stroke play, but I was even more impressed by the knowledge shown by Cruickshank of the technique of break-building. He always picked out the right shot when there was an alternative. This North Country lad has a brain as well as a cue.

LIKE A PISTON-ROD

His cue action was exactly right, his arm going back like a piston-rod in its precision.

PROSPECTS GOOD

POLICE HOPES

BRIGHTER and brighter are becoming the prospects of an all-Chinese Senior Shield final. Saturday's results determined the appearance in the semi-final of Chinese Athletic and South China "B." If South China "A" beat the Club in the second round, the last four will include three Chinese teams. The luck of the draw, in fact, will make possible a second precedent; the appearance in the final of two teams from the same club. South China "A" have an odds-on chance of

As I See It—By "Veritas"

defeating the Club, and if they can escape their junior outfit in the draw, the betting prospects of the two Caroline Hill teams contesting the final would be even.

THE DRAW FACTOR

AN all-Chinese Senior Shield final is not yet on record. South China, in 1929 and again in 1931, when they had but one team entered in this competition, won the trophy, and are, in fact, the only Chinese club to have their name inscribed on the shield. The striking display of Chinese Athletic against the Recreio on Saturday has sent Chinese Senior Shield stock soaring, and only the Police (and possibly the Club) stand in the way of a new record. So far as South China are concerned the draw will mean everything. If, in the event of their surviving the second round, South China "A" meet the Athletic, and the "B" the Police, the chances of the club supplying the finalists will be enhanced. South China "B" are more likely to beat the Police than the Athletic, who, on form, play the same time of game as the South China youngsters, but slightly better. On the other hand I think South China "A" will generally overcome the Athletic because they have a trick or two up their sleeves.

POLICE PROSPECTS

IT should not be thought by the foregoing that I have eliminated, as possessing no chances, the Police and Club. Both teams are capable of beating any of the three Chinese combinations; the Police more especially than the Club. But current form is current form, and as the South China teams appear to be playing as well in the Shield as they are in the League, and the Athletic above league form, there is a slight balance in favour of the Chinese. The Club, of course, have something of a traditional Shield record. That is to say they have won the trophy five times since its inception in 1897. But their

At Garmisch a large and elegant ice rink has been arranged for the Olympic Games in 1936. The rink, as seen above, is already being used for hockey matches.

BOXING CHAMPIONS & CHALLENGERS

PETTIFER BUSY: SOUTHERN TITLE FIGHTS

(By Fred Dartnell)

During the year just ended there have been several changes in the boxing championships. Len Harvey, who held two titles at the beginning of 1934, is now without either. The only two champions who have retained their honours through the year are Jackie Brown, the flyweight, and Jack McAvoy, king of the middle-weights. Both, you will notice, belong to Lancashire, which county, according to my friend Percy Todd, is going to carry off the Rugby championship honours this season.

Lancashire have had a pretty good year in recent years with regard to the boxing championships. Two of the titles, the bantam and cruiser-weight are vacant at present, but in the Palestine they do say, and with very good reason, that Johnny King is the uncorrupted monarch of the division. When Dick Corbett automatically lost his title, according to my friend Percy Todd, it was because he was too heavy; King remained; and to be frank I do not see anybody else good enough at 8st. 6lb. to beat him.

LIKE TANCY LEE Jackie Brown is eager to defend his championship as soon as possible, but before that occurs Tommy Pardee and Benny Lynch have to battle out an eliminator. Pardee, a sturdy fighter, comes from Birmingham and has won heaps of amateur honours, while in Scotland they liken Lynch to Tancy Lee, which is good enough praise for any boxer of to-day. I think, however, that Brown will keep on his throne. He, McAvoy and Petersen represent the best class amongst our championship holders.

Nel Tarleton may expect some troublesome times ahead from such feather-weight rivals as Dick Corbett, Dave Crowley, Benny Caplan and Ginger Foran. The first two are more likely than not between them to bring the title back to London. Kid Berg is not destined to remain very long at the top of the light-weights, I fancy. Quite a formidable number of eliminating bouts—five, to be precise—have been arranged by the Board of Control to find a challenger for Berg, whose predecessor, Mizler, is to try a "come-back" also. Pat Butler is the new welter-weight champion, but I think Dave McCleave will take the honours before long. In the middle it is a case of McAvoy on his own, although Al Burke is the official challenger. We shall have the cruiser-weight problem settled by Tommy Farr (Wales) and Eddie Phillips (London) at Mountain Ash on Feb. 4, the date on which Petersen meets Walter Neusel at the Albert Hall.

I shall always remember Mountain Ash and its rather grim atmosphere for the historic fight I saw there, when Jim Driscoll and Francis Rossi met before some thousands of the there, too, and sat in the Press box amongst the scribes, who were amused by his quaint comments on the scrap.

CROWD ATTACKS FOOTBALLER

Recued By Police On Field

During a football match between Llandudno and Aberystwyth in a Mid-Wales League fixture at Aberystwyth the police rescued a player from the crowd, which broke on to the field.

When Pritchard (Aberystwyth) robbed the international player, Jack Lloyd, of the ball he fell and some of the crowd declared that he was kicked on the knee.

It was then that the crowd rushed on to the field and Lloyd was struck several times before the police escorted him to the dressing room. He returned to the field, but throughout the remainder of the game he was subjected to cat-calling and booing.

At the close of the match the crowd again attempted to get at Lloyd when he was leaving the field surrounded by police and when he reached his hotel there was a hostile demonstration.

MEO PERICULO'S LAST WORD

LETTER MISINTERPRETED

Sports Editor Hongkong Telegraph

Sir,—"A long-winded diatribe concerning one match." What a terrific mouthful! I confess to being nervous of continuing a discussion with a man who rattles off phrases like that. But I would like to point out to "Veritas" that I did not suggest that R. Abbit should every week write a l-w. d. con. one m. I only perpetrated a l-w. d. on the H.K.C.C. I, R. C. match as an example of the incomprehension of the reports we get from R. Abbit of the more interesting of the week-end cricket matches. I have no doubt that people who watched other games that day could indicate many an interesting point they saw which was not referred to in the cricket notes. But that would be hardly fair. R. Abbit watched the Club-Indian match in its entirety and it would hardly be right to spring off points about other matches on him. The same remark does not, of course, apply to the game he watched.

I note with pleasure that "Veritas," of whom I saw nothing on the day of the match in question, "is prepared to admit" (presumably in agreement with me) that "Minu bowls equally as effectively with the balls which pitch on or outside the leg-stump etc. etc." The pleasure is, however, somewhat modified by the fact that that was not what I meant to convey at all. I would have thought anyone could have read me as meaning that Minu, although he undoubtedly did bowl well most of the time he was on, bowled too many shortish balls, some on the leg side, to deserve to be described as having bowled consistently accurately and well. Still, it is something to have a man like Veritas agreeing with one without having seen the facts for himself. It is not necessary, therefore, to discuss any other points there may be.

ELIOT HALL AND THE RECREIO

VARSITY TEAM FAVOURED

COURT ADVANTAGE

(By "Veritas")

Recreio "A" Meet Eliot Hall in the first division men's doubles of the badminton league to-morrow, and it is anticipated that Pokfulam will be invaded by numbers of enthusiasts anxious to see the two strongest teams in this division in conflict.

Both are as yet undefeated, and there is no questioning the fact that the championship rests between them. The Eliot Hall team, comprising Hongkong University men, most of whom learnt their badminton in Malaya, have, in the course of the last two seasons, recorded wins against the Recreio in friendly matches.

Since then, however, the Portuguese have made tremendous strides, and are certain to offer brilliant opposition to the Varsity players.

COURT ADVANTAGE. The advantage of playing on their own court, which has a somewhat low ceiling, thus nullifying lobbing, may be the determining factor in favour of Eliot Hall. The players themselves adopt the short game and as a team have no equals in the Colony. Against this the Recreio have well controlled but highly developed speed, and are particularly severe overhead.

The match should provide interesting and spectacular entertainment, and it is unlikely that either team will win by more than the odd game.

Owing to the desire of the players to watch this match, the "B" Division game on Wednesday between Recreio "B" and the Victoria Recreation Club has been mutually postponed.

NAVY RUGBY

Medway & Suffolk Fail To Score

A rugby game between the Medway and the Suffolk at Wapping yesterday resulted in a draw, both teams failing to score.

C. Smith at full back was the outstanding player for the Suffolk, and Willis also put in some good work. Amongst the Medway representatives S. L. Knox was the pick, and the forwards all played a good game, in contrast to the Suffolk pack who put up a rather poor showing.

The teams were:—Medway:—A. B. Smith; Tel. Morris; A. B. Getsum; E. R. A. Heywood; St. Morgan; Sub. Lt. Knox; A. B. Loxham; E. R. A. Hall; A. B. Haines; A. B. Owens; A. B. Parker; A. B. Walker; A. B. Courtney; A. B. Fisher; L. Sm. Overton. Suffolk:—C. Smith; St. Price; St. Jones; A. B. Mathew; St. Murphy; St. Mossop; A. B. Thornton; Meech; Willis; St. Haines; A. B. Cruickshank; Sgt. Richards; A. B. Hughes; A. B. Findor; St. Althingam; A. B. Wilson.

Petersen Engaged To Beauty Of Eighteen

London, Jan. 3. Jack Petersen, the 23-year-old British and Empire heavy-weight boxing champion, is engaged to Miss Betty Williams, aged 18, daughter of Mr. T. Baker Williams, a retired Cardiff auctioneer and accountant.

The official announcement was made yesterday, but Miss Williams, asked by our Cardiff Correspondent when the wedding would take place, replied, "Not for a long time."

Miss Williams, whom Petersen met at a dance 18 months ago, is of striking beauty, fair, and of medium height.

HATES TO SEE HIM HIT. She is not fond of boxing, and though the couple have been much about together for a long time, she has watched only two or three of his fights.

"I cannot bear to see him hit," she said; and when he has been punched in the fights she has watched, she has covered her face with her hands.

Women's Olympic Games Condemned

"There is no mercy for the beaten athlete," said Dr. Adolph Abrahams, addressing the British Association for Physical Training in London.

He referred to the effect on the nervous system of an athlete forced continuously to live in the limelight. "His life is one continuous anxiety," he said, "realizing that the world is a cruel place and that there is no mercy for failure."

"I speak from experience. The people only remember that the beaten athlete," Dr. Abrahams said, "but I must say that when I visualise the appearance of collapse and exhaustion in a male an unpleasant enough spectacle in some circumstances, I cannot bring myself to believe that it cannot be worse in the case of a woman."

MUCH WORSE FOR WOMEN. If (Dr. Abrahams) would expect it to be much worse in the case of the girl or young woman, he said so far as he could, see nervous system much less likely to stand up against the same strain—the hero worship, adula-

tion or other circumstances of violent competition.

For that reason he had never hesitated to speak against Olympic games for women, and he was strongly against the highly competitive lawn tennis.

He confessed that he might be wrong, and spoke of a woman doctor who had told him that he was, and said that she held that women on the whole were more flexible and adaptable than men.

"I may be perhaps old-fashioned," Dr. Abrahams said, "but I must say that when I visualise the appearance of collapse and exhaustion in a male an unpleasant enough spectacle in some circumstances, I cannot bring myself to believe that it cannot be worse in the case of a woman."

Speaking of smoking by athletes, he said so far as he could, see there was no clear evidence of tobacco having had any degenerative effect.

335 RUNS FOR 7TH WICKET

Sydney, Jan. 3.
C. W. Andrews and E. C. Bensted established a new Australian record here to-day with a seventh-wicket partnership of 335 runs for Queensland against New South Wales in a Sheffield match. This is only nine runs short of world record.

Andrews played a brilliant innings of 253. He hit 26 fours during a stay of nearly seven hours. Bensted's contribution to the partnership was 155, which contained 19 fours. He was concerned in the previous record for the seventh wicket, with K. Mossop, four years ago, when Queensland played South Australia.

To-day the New South Wales bowling was weak. The absence of O'Reilly and McCabe was sorely felt, and with runs coming freely in all parts of the field the "Hillites" began to voice their feelings.

They called on Oldied to send for Miss Palmer, the New South Wales girl who took 7 wickets for 18 against England recently in the first women's Test match.

ALL-CHINESE SHIELD FINAL?

Last success was in 1922, and with such a long blank period intervening, the record can hardly be expected to provide inspiration. The Police are in a similar position. They have won the Shield once before (in 1920), but of the two teams to-day I prefer their chances to those of the Club. The Police play that type of football which is more likely to reap success in knock-out competitions than in league ties. In modified form it is allied with the style of game which earned the Borderers such a rich crop of achievements. It can be described as neat, but not gaudy, robust, but not ruthless. Properly exploited it can upset the Chinese teams quicker than anything else; the adoption of one phase without the other is next door to the suicidal.

Shortly following this advice the partnership was broken by Chilvers, the slow bowler beating Bensted.

Goalkeeper Accused Of Manslaughter

An incident at a football match had a sequel at Swansea police court, when Charles Donovan, one of the goalkeepers, was accused of the manslaughter of Edward Thomas Cole, a player on the opposing side. Donovan pleaded not guilty.

Cole died after a football match at Swansea, on Dec. 13, between Cwm Athletic and South Wales Transport A.F.C.

Donovan was goalkeeper for Cwm and Cole was a member of the other team.

Edward John Morris, a spectator, who said he was standing near the goal post, and Cole accidentally kicked Donovan, and that then the latter told Cole that he would "have it in for him."

Later, he said, Donovan ran out from the goal straight at Cole and raised his knee, at the same time striking him with his fist. Both players fell. Cole died in Swansea Hospital two days later.

Witnesses for the defence attributed Cole's death to an accident.

William James Gow, the referee, said he only saw Donovan fall on Cole in the course of play.

Duration Point To Be Considered

"BODYLINE" NOW DEAD

Sydney, Jan. 3.
The Australian Board of Control has decided to make no comment on the bodyline incident mentioned in Mr. Bushby's, the Australian manager's, report to it on the Australian tour of this year.

In his report Mr. Bushby read a letter from the M.C.C. containing an apology from the Nottinghamshire Cricket Club for the manner in which Voce bowled against the Australian team.

After considering this, and Mr. Bushby's confidential report, the board decided to make no comment at all. "So far as we are concerned," said Mr. W. H. Jeannes, the secretary of the board, "the matter is over."

The Board has deferred its consideration of the new l.b.w. rule, put forward by the M.C.C., until its next meeting.

It acceded to the M.C.C.'s request that the team to tour Australia during the 1936-37 season should leave Australia a week earlier than did the 1935-36 team, for the purpose of visiting New Zealand.

A sub-committee was appointed to consider, and report to the Board, what recommendations should be made by the Board to the M.C.C. with regard to the duration of future Test matches. In England. Consideration will be given to the following conditions:

(1) Conditions as played this year.
(2) Playing all Tests to a finish.
(3) Extending the first four Tests to five days and playing the fifth to a finish if, at the end of the fourth, the difference of matches won is not greater than one.

Mr. Jeannes announced that the reports of the manager and treasurer had been considered, and that the Board had arrived at various recommendations as regards the conduct of tours for future consideration.

It was announced at the close of the meeting by Mr. Jeannes that W. M. Woodfull, captain of the Australian team, had been asked by the Board to submit, in writing, any views he may have had in connection with the tour which he might like to bring to their notice, as the Board intended to discuss his views and invite him to attend the next meeting at Melbourne should it be considered advisable. Woodfull did not submit any statement.

The Board allocated a further sum of £5,200, the remainder of the profits of the tour in England this year, less the amount taken for working expenses, to the States, bringing the sum granted up to £26,000. The next meeting of the Board will be held in September at Melbourne.

Goalkeeper Accused Of Manslaughter

Donovan volunteered a statement to the effect that the game proceeded in quite a friendly way and, when the ball was dropping about three yards away, he ran and dived for it, falling flat on his face.

When he got up he found the opposing player under him. Cole told him he felt "groggy," but that it could not be helped.

The medical evidence stated that the injury could have been caused by a fall.

Beat Royal Corps Of Signals

Visiting Macao on Sunday, the Royal Corps of Signals were defeated by five goals to nil by the Macao Hockey Club. Angelo netted the first goal, while Ramalho, who played a brilliant game at centre-forward, scored the remainder.

Macao fielded the same team as will meet Hongkong on Sunday, with the exception of the inside-right, Leonell, who substituted for L. Costa.

OPEN DOOR DOCTRINE

U.S. OFFICIAL WOULD LIKE EXTENSION

New York, Jan. 28.
Mr. William Phillips, Under Secretary of the Department of State, and formerly of the U.S. Legation of Peking, stated to-day in the course of a speech that the United States was willing to reduce its naval strength, providing the 5-5-3 ratio was maintained.

He said that the Administration held that the only way to reduce naval strength without upsetting political and economic equilibrium was to lower the levels proportionately.

The United States, he continued, was willing to negotiate on this basis when there were prospects of success.

He reiterated the Open Door doctrine, saying that it should be world-wide instead of confined to the Far East.

"Universal respect for the Open Door policy in the Far East would contribute substantially towards world stability and the maintenance of peace," Mr. Phillips concluded. —United Press.

THE INDIA BILL

PRIDE OF PLACE IN HEAVY SESSION

London, Jan. 28. A crowded session of unusual importance will open with the re-assembly of the House of Commons this afternoon and the House of Lords to-morrow.

India will be the dominating question during the next seven or eight months, despite the number of domestic measures, such as the Housing Bill, which normally would have pride of place.

The second reading debate on the massive India Bill will begin next week.

In the meantime, the Waverley by-election, where a split in the Conservative vote over India has occurred, will keep the issue before the public, as official Conservative headquarters and the India Defence League have precipitated an array of speakers into the battle on opposite sides.

The result of the election will be known on February 5 or 6, in the middle of the India debate.

To-day's sitting will open with questions on a variety of subjects, after which the House will discuss the administration of the Unemployment Assistance Board.

Grants for special areas will be discussed to-morrow, while the second reading of the Housing Bill will be taken on Wednesday or Thursday.

With these measures, also the estimates for the Budget, the Herring Bill, legislation to extend unemployment insurance to agricultural workers, besides discussions of general policy, Parliament will have one of the busiest sessions in its history.

—Reuter.

Long Debates

London, Jan. 28. Debates on the Government of India Bill will make heavy demands on the time of the Parliamentary session, which resumes to-day after the Christmas recess.

The second reading will be moved next week, and although it is assumed that arrangements will be reached to avoid a protracted examination of details, consideration of this measure will inevitably engage the attention of the House of Commons for several weeks.

There are also domestic Bills of first class importance awaiting examination. The Government's

DOLLAR SOARING

FRANCE CONTINUES TO BE UNDERVALUED

London, Jan. 28. The American dollar is now worth 2s. 6d. more than gold, while the franc continues to be undervalued in terms of the metal. The London price of gold, which is fixed by supply and demand, represents a discount of 2s. 6d. on the dollar, 4.82%, but a premium of 10d. over the franc, 74.75.

This is due to a persistent demand for dollars by speculators who are scared of the possible consequences of an adverse decision in the Gold Clause case.

Arbitrageurs are unwilling to ship gold to New York, which would normally rectify the situation, owing to the remote possibility of a change in the United States gold price.

Consequently, there is no check on the appreciation of the dollar, as revealed by the Paris-New York cross rate soaring 30 centimes above gold export point, apart from the intervention of the American Exchange Fund, which is recently reported to have acquired $300,000,000 worth of continental currencies. Exchanges are weaker. Members of the Gold Bloc are now quoted at gold import point in Paris.

London circles are not perturbed regarding the short term outlook of the franc, stressing the purely technical aspect of the present emergency.

On the other hand, nervousness persists regarding the Belgia, in connection with rumoured Cabinet difficulties. —Reuter.

proposals to end the evils of overcrowding, contained in the Housing Bill will be debated on the second reading this week, and in order to permit of a maximum time for the India Bill, it may be sent to the Standing Committee for further consideration. A strong demand is being made for prompt action on the Herring Bill, and several other measures are awaiting attention. In addition, the programme for the session includes the Budget and Finance Bill, and debates on Supply. It is anticipated that the commons will also demand opportunities for discussing large issues of general policy, particularly international affairs. —British Wireless.

LABOUR PARLEYS

U.S. EFFORTS TO OBTAIN STRIKES IN SPRING

Washington, Jan. 28. Miss Frances Perkins, the Secretary for Labour, is planning a Conference in February of the heads of 48 State federations of Labour in order to bring pressure to bear on the State Legislatures for uniform social-security legislation.

Miss Perkins will at the same time endeavour to learn the labour grievances, in anticipation of the usual run of strikes during the Spring.

The American Federation of Labour executives will also meet in conference in the near future, in order to discuss labour alliances to combat the industrial "Gentlemen's Agreement" to block unionism.

It is learnt that Mr. William Green, President of the American Federation of Labour, opposes the alliances, fearing that they might get out of control and result in a general strike throughout the United States.

It is this occurs, Mr. Green fears that unionism will be irreparably disrupted.

The A.F.L., at its forthcoming conference, will also seek a compulsory 30-hour week, and will oppose the payment of only $50 a month for Relief workers. —United Press.

"DOWN WITH BABY STARVERS!"

DEMONSTRATION IN COMMONS

DISGRACEFUL ATTACK ON PREMIER

London, Jan. 28.
One of the most violent disturbances ever to occur in the public gallery of the House of Commons broke out to-night during the debate on the supplementary estimate for £5,000,000 to be voted towards the newly-created Unemployment Assistance Board, in order to standardise throughout the country the rates of assistance for able-bodied unemployed who have exhausted their unemployment benefits.

The Government's proposals were warmly criticised on the ground that they were inadequate by the Labourite, Mr. George Buchanan of Glasgow, who started the House by a virulent attack on the Premier, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, who was not present.

Mr. MacDonald was described as a mountebank, a swine, a low and dirty cur, who ought to be horse-whipped and slung out of public life.

Mr. Buchanan's outburst was followed by an outrageous scene in the public gallery where women rose, screaming, "Down with the National Government!" "Down with the baby-starvers!"

The demonstrators were immediately ejected by the House of Commons officers, but others who had at first appeared docile enough and had not joined in the shouting, took up the game, and constantly interrupted proceedings in the House.

Pandemonium ensued for some minutes. After sixty persons had been taken away and the shouting had not stopped, the Speaker finally ordered the whole gallery cleared.—Reuter.

Routine In Commons

HOLIDAY FOR MAY 6

ABGLO-IRISH AGREEMENT

London, Jan. 28.

At the re-assembly of the House of Commons to-day, the Prime Minister, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald announced that May 6 would be observed as a "paid holiday" for all Government employees, in connection with the King's Silver Jubilee.

A few minutes later, Mr. J. H. Thomas, "Dominion" Secretary, gave the House even more cheering news. Referring to the Anglo-Irish agreement for the exchange of exports of coal and cattle, he estimated that nearly 1,750,000 tons of coal annually would be shipped from England to the Free State under this arrangement, which would represent the full employment of 5,000 miners.

Mr. Thomas described the agreement as satisfactory to both sides and distinctly beneficial to Britain.

If, he said, the arrangement could be extended in a way which would lead to the settlement of wider and bigger political issues, the Government would welcome it. The door was open, he said.

Asked whether any decision had been made regarding the building of a sister ship to the gigantic Cunarder, Queen Mary, a Government spokesman replied in the negative.—Reuter Special.

EMPIRE AIRWAYS EXPANSION

CO-ORDINATION OF SERVICES

EXPERTS LEAVE LONDON

London, Jan. 28.
According to the Daily Telegraph, a joint delegation from the Air Ministry and the Post Office will leave Croydon by an Imperial liner to-day en route to India, Siam, Singapore and Australia.

The delegation will discuss with local experts the ground organization and co-ordination of the Empire's air services, in furtherance of the scheme of development recently announced by Sir Philip Sassoon in the House of Commons.

The delegates will be: Mr. F. G. Bertram, M.P., Deputy Director of Civil Aviation, Mr. T. L. Guinness, M.P., and prominent industrialist, Brig-Gen. Sir F. H. Williamson, Director of Postal Services since 1923, and Sir Edward Campbell, Parliamentary Private-Secretary to H. M. Postmaster-General.—Reuter.

RESTORING PAY CUT

UNITED STATES SENATE ACTION

Washington, Jan. 28.
The Senate to-day voted to restore the remaining five per cent. of the Federal Government employees' pay cuts on April 1.

Federal Government employees had two wage cuts during the state of financial emergency with which the Roosevelt Administration was faced when it came into power. The first cut was restored some months ago.—United Press.

IMPROVED INDUSTRY

ENCOURAGING U.S. INDEX

Washington, Jan. 28.
The Federal Reserve Monthly Survey gives the index of industrial output for the month of December, 1934, as 85 per cent. of the 1923-1925 average, as compared with 74 per cent. for November.

The Survey states that wholesale farm and food prices advanced considerably, and also said that steel, automobile, woolen and textile activity increased contrary to the seasonal tendency during the months mentioned.—United Press.

U.S. AIR DEFENCE SCHEME

HUGE FORCE PLANNED

FOR USE IN EMERGENCY

Washington, Jan. 28.

The United States will depend upon an emergency fighting and transport branch of the Air Force for the protection of possessions abroad, and for the defence of her own coast, should the Navy suffer a serious defeat in time of war.

It is learned to-day that the Department of War considers that the General Headquarters Air Force must be looked upon as the first line of defence for Puerto Rico, Hawaii, Alaska, and possibly the Philippine Islands.

The War Department plans to maintain the Air Force constantly at full strength, contracted with an infantry, artillery and cavalry skeletonized force for peace time.

Treating on the subject of defence, the War Department contends that if the American Navy were bested in an engagement with a foreign power, and enemy troops gained a foothold on the mainland, the Air Force could be despatched immediately to prevent any enlargement of the captured area until ground forces had arrived.

(The question of army transport to insular possessions in case of a naval loss, is not dealt with.) The Army is studying plans for reaching the Philippines by way of American-held islands, in transport planes. The first step will probably be the creation of a seaplane base at Wake Island, in the Hawaiian group, 2,200 miles from California; and a third base in the East Philippines.

The War Department plans to template the construction of five wings of 200 planes each, located on the mainland of the United States, but constantly prepared to fly to any threatened area.—United Press.

SHAI MARKET REPORT

FOREIGN EXCHANGE RATES FIRMER

Shanghai, Jan. 29.
Rates on the Foreign Exchange Market here this morning are a shade firmer than yesterday's close but there is practically no business being done.

Yesterday $520,000 arrived from Hongkong, but $500,000 was shipped to Tientsin and $100,000 to Amoy.

Rates continued steady on the foreign exchange market here at 10.30 a.m.

Conditions remained unchanged from the opening, and the market is extremely quiet.

Rates remained firm at 12.30 p.m. but trading has been very dull with few buyers of exchange throughout the morning.

Later, the foreign exchange market was slightly easier this afternoon. The easy tendency is attributable to a slackening demand due to the expectation that rates will decline after the Chinese New Year. Also Chinese speculators are inclined to buy exchange despite the fact that so little business is passing.—United Press.

Two unemployed seamen, Yau Kam-shu and Yau Fuk, appeared before Mr. W. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy this morning, on a charge of possession of two weapons designed for the discharge of gas cartridges and also 18 cartridges in Cross Street, without authority from His Excellency the Governor. The first defendant admitted the offence, but the second defendant denied it. On the application of Detective Sergeant Fitches, the case was remanded for 48 hours, bail in $1,000 each being allowed.

Leading counsel in the Hauptmann trial. Left, Mr. Edward Kelly, for the defence; right, State Attorney General Willentz, who leads the prosecution.

Hauptmann Defences Damaged

Flemington, Jan. 28.

The relentless pounding of questions, in an attempt to trip Bruno Hauptmann into contradictions, has brought a certain measure of success to Attorney-General Willentz of New Jersey, prosecuting the charge of kidnapping and murder here.

Mr. Willentz to-day forced the prisoner, Hauptmann, to admit, first, that he kept false financial accounts in order to prevent his wife learning that he had money; and, second, that the alleged diary containing the word "bond," which—the prosecution—alleges means "boat," was really written in 1931, and not 1926, as Hauptmann first declared.

The prosecution is attempting to show that the misspelled words in the ransom notes, written by the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby three years ago, might have been Hauptmann's. Hauptmann has insisted that he is able to spell and that his diary, which contained many spelling errors, was written years ago, before he was so well acquainted with the English language.

FAILS IN TEST

The prosecution won its third point in the day's proceedings when Mr. Willentz put Hauptmann's spelling ability to the test. It was found that he was unable to spell certain words similar to those which were incorrectly written in the ransom notes.

The fourth point made by Mr. Willentz was gratifying to the State. Hauptmann had insisted that he had had money long before the kidnapping affair. Mr. Willentz forced him to admit that he had been unable to meet a $74 stock market margin requirement just prior to the kidnapping.

ADMITS LIE

Hauptmann admitted that he had lied when he told the Bronx District Attorney, Mr. Foley, that he had written London's telephone number on a board taken from his cupboard. He said he lied because, at that time, he was excited. He did not know what he was saying. He now claims he never wrote the numbers.

A moment later, he lost his temper and shouted at Mr. Willentz: "You lied to me, mister."

Whereupon, Mr. Willentz calmly forced him to admit that he had never talked to him outside the court room.

Hauptmann, towards the end of the session, resorted to general denials, or could not remember to answer other embarrassing questions.—United Press.

THRILLING FINISH

Port of Spain, Jan. 28.
Another sensational collapse by the English batsmen, saw the West Indies win the Second Test Match to-day by 217 runs after a thrilling finish. The last wicket fell when there was only half a minute left for play.

Outplayed from the time R. E. S. Wyatt decided to give the West Indies first knock, the English team was soundly beaten. Twice the keen West Indies' attack upset the leading batsmen, whereas the winners themselves scored comfortably. This result makes the countries level, England having won the first Test at Barbados.

When the West Indies resumed their second innings this morning they were 194 runs ahead with seven wickets in hand. On a good wicket, the batsmen continued to pile on the runs steadily. George Headley, not out 69 over-night, plodded along to score 93 in 220 minutes, before standing in front of a straight one from Smith. Headley, although playing correct cricket, was very subdued. His best hits were eight boundaries.

Subsequently Constantine and Rolfe Grant lived things up somewhat the former hitting up a valuable 31 and Grant 28. This enabled the West Indies to apply the declaration at lunch time with the score at 280 for 6, leaving England to amass 325 to win.

Wyatt sent in Townsend and Farrimond to open the English innings, but although the Derbyshire man stayed on to score 30, the rest of the team failed miserably. Smith was run out after scoring three and Hendren suffered a similar fate immediately after reaching double figures. Hammond, Wyatt and Ames left in quick succession, and although Leyland made a great effort to stem the tide, he left just before the end.

Iddon failed to score and amid tremendous excitement, the last English wicket dropped with but half an over to go.

Constantine followed up his batting performances with some great bowling which earned him three wickets for 11 runs in 14 overs, nine of which were maidens.

The theft of a pair of cotton socks from a boy hawker in Aberdeen Street led to the arrest of Cheung Yau, a book binder, who appeared before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Central Police Court this morning. He was sentenced to six weeks' hard labour on pleading guilty. Inspector A. W. Smith prosecuted.

CONTINUED WAR ON REBEL ELEMENT

M. MOLOTOV BOASTS OF ARMY'S POWER

Moscow, Jan. 28.

M. Viacheslav Molotov, Chairman of the Council of People's Commissars, one of the most powerful men in Russia, opening the Seventh All-Union Congress of Soviets to-day, at which 2,000 delegates were present, challenged the foreign critics of the recent political executions which followed the murder of the official, Kirov.

He declared the Government would continue to mete out similar punishment to all its enemies of the same order, in spite of the protests from abroad.

M. Molotov said that Russia's relations with China were good. He denied foreign reports that the Soviet Union was attempting to Sovietise Sinkiang.

It was his opinion, he said, that some military elements in Japan wanted war, but the Soviet's defences had been strengthened, and she was not afraid.

He stressed the economic advance of Russia under Soviet administration, declaring that since 1929 the level of production had risen by 139 per cent., while it had fallen 24 per cent. in the capitalistic world.

BAD RELATIONS

Speaking of the Soviet's relations with Germany, M. Molotov admitted that they were abnormally bad. Germany, he believed, had aggressive designs on Soviet territory.

He said that while the Disarmament Conference had been a failure, the Soviet Union still hoped to create a permanent anti-war body out of the ruins. There was still material available.

INCOME INCREASES

Reverting to the financial condition of the Soviet, he asserted that it had vastly improved since the 1931 Congress. The gold income had been multiplied six-fold in that time, he declared, and foreign debts had been decreased by three-fourths of their total.

Before he concluded, he laid stress upon the fact that the Red Army had greatly increased its mechanised equipment, until it was now one of the most efficient served fighting organisations in the world.—United Press.

EXPANDING ARMY

Moscow, Jan. 28.
During the past four years, the Soviet has increased its mechanised army fourfold, declared M. Viacheslav Molotov, Chairman of the Council of People's Commissars (a post corresponding to that of Premier abroad) when addressing the All-Union Congress of the Soviets here to-day.

The army, he said, now possessed larger numbers of artillery units, tanks and aeroplanes, together with better defensive fortifications on the East frontier.

He admitted that the first five-year plan had not been completely fulfilled owing to the unforeseen increases in the expenditure for defence.

The 2,000 delegates cheered Stalin unintermittently for five minutes, when the Iron Master appeared on the speaker's platform.—Reuter.

Wan Ying, aged 22, unemployed, appeared before Mr. E. W. Hamilton at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning, charged with stealing a signboard from No. 864 Nathan Road, the property of Dr. Ho An-cho on Monday. It was stated that the defendant was seen by a detective at 4 a.m.; he immediately dropped the signboard and ran away but was eventually caught. Sentence of six weeks' hard labour was passed. Detective Sergeant Downman prosecuted.

BRITAIN AIDS HER COLONY

NEWFOUNDLAND RECOVERING

HOPEFUL REPORT

London, Jan. 28.

The Newfoundland Commission Government, which was appointed to administer the affairs of the Colony on the suspension of the existing Government last year, has issued its Interim Report on the economic situation.

It reviews the steps taken to reduce the public debt, by which the annual out-going funds are reduced by over $2,000,000 (Newfoundland currency), but points out that in spite of this economy the deficit was $1,500,000 at the end of the year. This was met by the United Kingdom's grant-in-aid.

The Budget up to June 30, 1936, provides for a balance of $2,750,000, with the help of the grant-in-aid.

There has been a reorganisation of revenue and expenditure. Many customs duties have been reduced, but the increasing prosperity is largely neutralised by the decrease in revenue. However, the situation is more hopeful than when the budget was prepared six months ago.

REVIVING INDUSTRY

Steps have been taken to revive the cod fisheries which constitute the staple industry, and it is generally seen that the 1934 season was better than 1933.

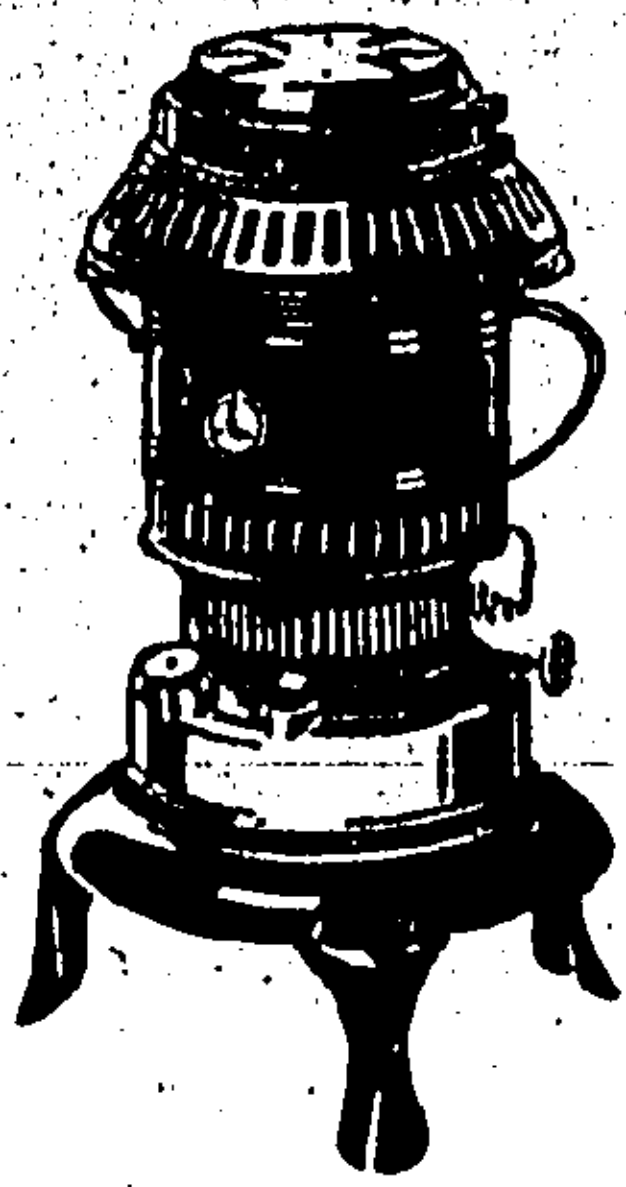

The report deals with the Commission's activities in various directions, including the introduction of an age limit for the retirement of civil servants—65 years—and the establishment of a uniform system of civil pensions.

The report concludes that for a number of years the Island's revenue is likely to fall short of expenditure which will be incurred not only by the development of Newfoundland's resources to a point requisite for her self-support, but for the administration and public service.—Reuter Special.

JAPAN'S PLACE IN THE WORLD

London.

Dr. S. Henslett, Bishop in South Tokyo, who is now in England on leave has declared that "the future of civilisation centres in the Pacific and the claims of Japan as a World Power cannot be ignored."

"Nothing would please the Japanese more than a better understanding of their national problems by the people of Great Britain. The occupation of Manchukuo was a case of doing the right thing—in the wrong way."

"Japan's anxiety in regard to China is that China may be and is likely to constitute a menace directly to her safety. Therefore Japan wishes to have a guiding hand in the organisation for defensive and peaceful reasons."

"I can safely affirm that the Japanese people want peace, and though Japan is unwilling to go to war with any nation, yet she will make war if driven to extremities, to procure safety for her nationals. The people are behind the Government in their Manchukuo policy. If Russia or America could crush Japan the effect would only last from ten to twelve years—the process would have to be continually repeated."

Constable's Error

STOLEN CAR
INNOCENT DRIVER

The hearing was concluded at York County Court recently of the case in which Joseph Southerton, manufacturers' agent, of Billot Road, Walthamstow, claimed £100 damages for injuries to himself and his motor-car when a police constable on the look-out for two stolen motor-cars swung a storm lamp through the windscreen and Southerton's face was cut by the glass.

The action was against Police constable Pickup, of the York Police. He was on the Dringhouses road, standing between red hurricane lamps, intercepting traffic in each direction. Southerton admitted seeing the lamps and a figure which he said he thought was that of a night watchman. He assumed that road repairs were in progress and was going to pass on his right when he found he could get through on the left and swerved back. A lamp was then lifted violently from the ground and came through his windscreen.

Police constable Pickup said that red lamps were the customary police night signal at York. He had stopped something like 20 cars previously that night by waving a lamp at them. He did the same in this case, and as the car swerved and came straight at him, so that he had to jump out of the way, he threw the lamp at the car to stop it, because he thought it was one of the stolen cars.

Judge Stewart gave judgment for Southerton with £75 damages and costs.

His Honour said that police officers had onerous duties to perform and on the whole performed them well, but in this case a young officer had got an inflated idea about this vehicle, and in his (Judge Stewart's) opinion his action would require a good deal of justification. His Honour referred to the dangerous consequences which might have ensued on flinging a lighted paraffin lamp at a moving car in order to stop it in such a way that it hit the windscreen carelessly and recklessly, and commented on the terrible menace which the deflection of the steering of cars in this way would constitute.

THOUSANDS ENJOY WINTER SPORT ANYONE CAN LEARN ON NURSERY SLOPES

By WILFRID TREMELLEN

Thousands of British people are travelling to Switzerland for the winter sports. Snow has at last fallen heavily in Switzerland, and the sports are in full swing. Twice as many trains have been run from England as compared with last year.

You may not have seen a luge, either, but it hardly matters. Because the winter sports folk are a cheery crowd, and it is difficult to feel a stranger among them. The jolly old man in the corner seat at Victoria constitutes himself your "uncle" as soon as you have given him permission to smoke, and although his labels show he is going to a different centre, what he does not know about the place you are bound for is negligible.

PLACE FOR BEGINNERS

On your first morning in Switzerland you go down to the village to select ski and sticks at the "Sport Shop." For two or three francs you can hire all you want for a fortnight. Your travelling companions of yesterday, all talking at once, explain how you find your right size, and soon you are all plank-planking down the frozen road towards the Nursery Slopes. It reminds you of the time when you were a child and tied date-boxes to your feet.

You climb a modest slope and shove yourself off with your sticks. Now you are whizzing down in fine style, breathless with the exhilaration of it until, after attaining what seems a fearful speed, you wobble, recover, wobble again and fall, losing your sticks and tumbling over and over. Astonishing! You sit up, wipe the snow from your eyes, and find that, though the mountains all seem to have changed places, you have not hurt yourself in the least.

EASY TO LEARN

After a few more descents you find that if you keep your knees "loose" they act as springs and you can keep your balance over the irregularities of the slope.

While you are struggling to your feet an old hand comes up with a word of advice. "The way to avoid falling," he says, giving you an

Later on you will go on ski-ing excursions to the mountains, and the lunch you bring with you in your rucksack and eat in the silence of the fir-clad slopes will be the most enjoyable of your life—especially if your guide lights a fire of fir-cones and makes glühwein. This is a delicious hot drink made with white wine, cinnamon and sugar boiled with snow.

LUGING PARTIES

In the afternoons there are sometimes lugging parties. Then you, like everybody else in the hotel, drag your luge by its reins up to the top of the toboggan-run and, joining the queue, sit chatting on your mount until the man in front is sent off. One minute later the starter nods to you. At once you shove off over the lip of the descent and go whizzing down the steep ice-covered track.

It feels like hurtling down a long white tunnel, because you simply dare not raise your eyes at first, and see only the blur of the snow banked up on either side. Swift as the wind! Now comes a corner. You tug at the reins, and your feet scabble frantically on the ice. You brake just sufficiently to avoid shooting up the bank, and then you are round the corner and whizzing down the straight. There is another corner, and then another, but you have got the hang of it now and soon feel confident enough to raise your eyes and enjoy the glorious mountains.

DON'T MISS THIS

You stay in your sports kit for tea—there will be music in the lounge—and later, after putting your damp gloves and socks on your bedroom radiator to dry, you bath and change for dinner.

There will be revelry afterwards—champagne, paper hats, Paul Jones and what-have-you. But do not omit to do this, on one riotous evening at least: steal away at some moment when the fun is greatest and the noise loudest and take a look at the moonlight on the eternal snow-clad mountains. It is freezing hard outside, but the stars are brilliant in the indigo sky and the pines stand like sentinels in the silence.

King Winter reigns in Switzerland again, and thousands of his loyal subjects are enjoying the multitude of sports at his court.

FURNITURE BY HIRE-PURCHASE

Leeds. Further plans have been made in connexion with the £12,000,000 housing scheme of the Leeds Corporation.

Additional particulars of the hire-purchase furnishing plan which has caused so much comment have been given by the chairman of the Housing Committee, the Rev. C. Jenkinson, who indicated that the type of furniture under the hire-purchase agreement would be similar to that displayed in the exhibition houses. Everything which is considered essential in the way of furniture and furnishings is shown in a price-list which has been issued for complete furnishings on the hire-purchase system. A reduction is made where the tenant is in a position to pay cash.

It has also been decided to build flats to accommodate 800 families in the Quarry Hill district, which was until recently one of the slums of the city. The scheme is an ambitious one and includes a community centre, swimming baths and wash-houses, accommodation for perambulators, a central station for the disposal of refuse, 20 shops, and a children's bathing pool.

Another tender has been accepted, the Woolly Construction Company, Limited, of Leeds, having secured the contract for the erection of 203 dwellings at £70,692.

The chairman states that the lists of application for corporation houses have now had to be closed. No houses will be available apart from those needed for slum-clearance purposes and the 1,000 which are to be erected under the non-subsidy plan.

British Tommies (Top) receiving a jovial Nazi salute from Saar-landers as they prepared to take up their billets in Saarbrücken upon arrival to patrol the Saar valley during the League of Nations plebiscite period. They immediately began to make friends among the townsfolk who accorded them a cordial reception. Two of them are pictured below in difficulty over the language while picking out the inevitable picture postcards to send home.

The worst Canadian railway accident in 40 years occurred near the little town of Dundas, in the province of Ontario, as holiday celebrants returned to their homes Christmas night. A fast express train, swerving into a siding instead of passing on the main line, tore into the rear coaches of a holiday special, standing on the siding to allow the express right of way, reducing them to a mass of splintered wreckage, killing 15 and injuring 35. Frantic work in the early hours of the morning by railway wrecking crews, volunteers, doctors and nurses succeeded in saving many more lives. Above is shown a view of the debris after the huge locomotive tore its way through the passenger coaches.

"TRAPPIST BEER" TRADE NAME

Brussels, Jan. 2. The Antwerp Commercial Court has non-suited the Trappist Fathers in a claim for 250,000 francs damages for unlawful competition made by them against a brewer of Brasschaet, near Antwerp, who sold beer under the name of Trappist Beer.

For the brewer it was contended that the name "Trappist" was not a special mark, but applied to several beers made in different

Trappist monasteries; that the Trappists were not traders, and therefore could not complain of competition on the part of a real trader.

The Court, in a closely reasoned judgment, agreed entirely with the brewer's submissions. It held that the Trappists were an association not for purposes of profit, and that their ideal was to live according to the precepts of St. Benedict, to do charitable work, and to propagate the Catholic Faith. Though it could be admitted that a religious community might carry on a trade to supply its charitable funds, it was inadmissible that such a community should place itself on the same footing as real traders, whose business was carried on exclusively for profit.

Sir Oswald Mosley, leader of the British Fascist party (left), shown leaving the court at Lewes, Essex, during the course of his trial on charges of riotous assemblage. The case arose from stormy meetings of the Mosley-led Blackshirts. Sir Oswald was acquitted.

FAMOUS PIANISTE INTERVIEWED

Studies People & Music of All Nations

"I believe that to attain any skill as an artist, it is necessary to study the people and music of all nations," said Madame Renee Florigny, the famous French pianiste, when interviewed at the Hongkong Hotel yesterday.

Mme. Florigny, whose knowledge of musical art is comprehensive, is giving a concert at the Hongkong Hotel Roof Garden to-morrow evening. She will include compositions by Mozart, Debussy, Schumann, Liszt, Chopin, Liszt and Debussy, as well as many French and Spanish pieces.

For the last fifteen months, Mme. Florigny has been travelling round the world and, in addition to actual touring, she has been studying the different people with whom she has come in contact.

She will leave here on Friday for Manila where several concerts will be given. She will then journey to Indo-China and Java, later returning to Japan.

Wherever concerts have been given, Mme. Florigny has played to large audiences.

"The English," she said, "are delighted in their understanding of the beauties of music as composed by Chopin, Beethoven, Mozart and Liszt. Although I find it interesting to play to cosmopolitan audiences, I really favour English listeners, especially those who turned up to see me in India and Shanghai."

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS
In attempting to understand the peoples of all races, Mme. Florigny has interested herself to a large degree in studying different music and instruments and seeking to interpret the style of each composition. She has studied Oriental music in Morocco, India, Japan and China and has been most interested in different native instruments. Her favourite instrument is the Chinese violin.

In describing Chinese music and her study of it in Peking, Mme. Florigny said:

"I am more than pleased to find the Chinese taking such an interest in their own music and also European compositions. They seem to have fathomed the idioms of the West and display a familiarity with musical forms which speaks volume for the intelligence of their race." Chinese students of foreign music flocked to her concerts in Peking and Tientsin.

POLICE OFFICERS CHARGED

SEQUEL TO MOTOR FATALITY

A sequel to the recent Coroner's inquiry into the death of Pang Young, a coolie, in Pottinger Street on December 16, was the appearance before Mr. W. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy this morning, of Police Sergeant Effremoff, summoned for having driven private car No. 3664 without an appropriate driver's licence at 1.20 a.m. on December 16 in Pottinger Street, and with failing to make a report of an accident.

The defendant admitted both summonses, saying that as he thought the accident was such a trivial matter, and there was not much damage done to the car, he need not report it.

Mr. Schofield fined defendant $10 on the first summons, and $20 on the second, remarking that it was more serious because he was a Police Officer and should have known better.

Sub-inspector Dredge was also summoned for having allowed an unlicensed driver (Sergeant Effremoff) to drive the car, and Inspector Alexander asked for a week's remand, as defendant was in hospital.

The request was granted.

NAVAL OFFICER FINED

Lt. J. N. Garnett, Royal Navy, was fined a total of $30 on three summonses of having allowed an unlicensed driver to drive private car No. 1738 at Repulse Bay on December 24 last year; driving without an appropriate licence; and failing to report a collision with bus No. 2439.

Defendant said he bought the car a fortnight previous to the incident, and was going to take out a licence. He did not make a report of the collision because there was no damage to his car.

Inspector Alexander said the defendant had lent the car to his brother, and it came into collision with a bus. No action was being taken against defendant's brother, who was away from the Colony. The defendant himself was an experienced driver. It was a slight collision, and the bus received very little damage. The defendant had told the police that his car was stopped at the time, but whether he was driving or not, he should have reported the accident.

Dr. H. Kruppa was cautioned on a summons of leaving private car No. 3948 unattended in Chater Road. The doctor stated that he had gone into his office for a short while, and had left the car there because there was no other space available.

ALLEGED ROBBERS

CAUGHT BY TRAFFIC POLICE

Two gangsters entered 278 Mataunui Road, Kowloon City district, the home of Mrs. Buntzen, at 9.30 this morning, and after tying and gagging the victim, made off with $145 in cash and a gold finger ring.

In the street later, two men, alleged to be the robbers, were chased by Traffic Sgt. Melness on his motor-cycle and by a motor-driver in his vehicle, and eventually caught.

"Now I Feel Like A New Woman!"

Of the many trials that women are called upon to endure, perhaps there is none greater than that of motherhood. All too frequently this ordeal is followed by extreme weakness and much suffering. A case in point is that of Mrs. Allman, the mother of five children, of 905, Manchester Road, Over Hulton, near Bolton, England, who stated recently to a newspaper reporter:—

"After my last baby was born about two years ago I failed to recover strength. I always felt wretchedly weak, and if I tried to do any work I had a severe pain over my heart. My nerves were in such a state that I dare not go out shopping. That was not the worst of it, for I suffered terribly from cramp in the night all through my body. I was so wracked with pain that I could not sleep.

I tried various remedies, but derived no benefit, and then about four months ago my brother-in-law advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, as they had done his wife much good. I started taking the pills, and before long there was a decided improvement. This encouraged me to persevere with the pills. I continued to gain strength, and the cramp pains began to lessen until before long they went altogether.

"Now I am like a new woman. People remark what a wonderful change there is in me. Ever since a girl I suffered from anaemia, but now all traces of it have disappeared."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, the world-renowned blood builder and nerve tonic, are equally good for weak, debilitated, nervous men as they are for women. Chemists everywhere sell them.

AVIATION
PROSPECTS

Fresh hopes of an understanding being reached between the Hongkong and Nanking Governments in regard to mutual flying
rights have been engendered by
the visit to the Colony of Mr.
Tai En-ki, the managing director of the China National Aviation Corporation. It is known
that Mr. Tai has conferred with
the local authorities on the
subject, but, according to a
statement which he made in Canton, nothing definite trans-
pired from the conversations,
as the subject is at present en-
Colonial Office and the Hongkong Government. The latter,
however, is said to be anxious
to come to an agreement on
mutually satisfactory lines and
thus open up the Colony to
aerial contact with China. It
has long been known that the
authorities here and in London
are desirous of overcoming the
present obstacles, and if Mr.
Tai's statement of the quid pro
quo which the Nanking Government would be prepared to offer
for the right to extend the
C.N.A.C. service to Hongkong
correctly represents the situation, it is reasonable to expect
an early adjustment of the outstanding issues. According to Mr. Tai, the Nanking Government would, in exchange for the
right to bring its planes here,
grant permission for British
planes to fly over Chinese territory on the projected Imperial Airways route from Singapore.
In such an event, says Mr. Tai,
there would be an exchange of
mails and passengers as between
the two services. Hitherto, it
has been presumed that the Imperial Airways would provide
its own feeder service from

LOUISIANA REVOLT

To British people, report of a
"revolt" against the State administration in Louisiana by men who call themselves the "Square Dealers,"
seems an incredible thing. When
two hundred citizens of a city the
size of Baton Rouge arm themselves
with shotguns and threaten to fight
in order to put an end to the "arrog-
ant dictatorship" of the faction led
by Senator Huey Long, it would
seem that there must be something
very wrong with the political structure of Louisiana. Imagine two hundred fellows from Manchester
threatening the Council with shot-
guns! If it had occurred anywhere
else in the United States it would have been called "revolution."
But apparently that sort of thing is expected in Senator Long's part of
the country. As a matter of fact
one cannot be surprised at anything
that happens there. Only recently
Senator Long was at war with the
New Orleans administration, al-
legedly because his party machine's
workings were interrupted by
officials who felt that the game of political patronage was being pushed too far. But in New Orleans, although the military was called
out, there was never such a demonstration as this at Baton
Rouge. The New Dealers are
apparently business men, honest
fellows, and it will be a pity if their
demonstration does not arouse a
higher authority than Senator Long

TO-MORROW'S TRAVEL

When the chairman of Imperial Airways announced that the construction possibilities of civil aircraft go far beyond anything that
has been realised hitherto, he made
it plain that the limits to-day are
determined only by what the public
is prepared to pay. If governments
were prepared to pay more for
ground services and in subsidies,
and passengers to pay higher fares,
then quicker regular air services
could easily be provided between England and Australia and a safe
service between England and America. This sequel indicates
that the recent dramatic air race
from England to Australia provided
one of those turning points which
have marked the history of air travel. If that transcontinental and transmarine journey to the Antipodes could be made in three
days, why cannot the ordinary time
for air mail be reduced by 50 or more per cent? The answer seems
be met.

NEW EXPERIMENTS

The race stirred public opinion in Britain. At once it became evident
that the British people were demanding much faster and better inter-imperial communications.
And swiftly in answer to this demand came the announcement that Imperial Airways was ready to
supply a regular seven-day service
from England to Australia for passengers and mails. But that was not all. It had become apparent that Britain was not willing to be behind hand in preparing for a regular transatlantic service. Imperial Airways is already experimenting with new types of aeroplanes and also with composite vessels consisting of flying boat capable of lifting and launching into the air
a heavily laden seaplane. But it
seems more likely that the solution
of the problem of regular services
between England and the United States will be found in the use of
floating, anchored seadromes. Such
a service no longer holds out serious economic difficulties. It can become a success as soon as the
nations agree to co-operate in their use of the floating ports.

the same time there have been
indications that it might be prepared to work in with any
substantially British concern.
It remains to be seen whether
there are local interests willing
to come into the scheme. There
is, at any rate, guarantee of a
subsidy by the local Government
if satisfactory arrangements
can be reached. But whatever
the eventual procedure may be,
it is essential that definite steps
be taken, without further delay,
in linking up this Colony with
other aviation services. Incidentally, the C.N.A.C. is said
to have no knowledge of the American plans for a service
from San Francisco to Canton;
indeed, there is some doubt whether China would be prepared to come into such a scheme;
indications are that the C.N.A.C.
would prefer to establish its
own link with Manila. However that may be, it is something to the good to realise that
the project of bringing Hong-
kong into aerial contact with
the outside world is now assuming more definite shape. Happily, we can count on the Hongkong Government doing all within its power to hasten this consummation of this much-needed
project.

TO BARROW BY
(In The Christian Science Monitor)

FIVE o'clock of a morning early
in May found us toiling up
a gentle incline before the clustered igloos of the Nektuk reindeer
herd. All night we had been
labouring across the level, snow-
cloaked tundra under the chill
brilliance of the circling sun. At
each step my sealskin boots broke
through the thin, deceptive crust,
sank knee-deep in soft snow.
Wearily I drew them out, only to thrust them in again, over and over—endlessly.

At my side, Kitook, my sturdy
little sled deer, his head drooping
under the weight of great branch-
ing antlers, mouth wide, snatching
a bit of snow from time to time,
wallowed through soft drifts. The
horizon line swept around us in a
great, unbroken circle, bounding
the vast expanse of white. Not a sound broke the silence save the
pant of Kitook's loud breathing,
the sharp crackle of sinews above
the fetlock. Nothing was visible
upon the great white plain except
our three reindeer teams, strung
out, one behind the other, en route
from the home village of Wainwright to pay a friendly call upon
our nearest white neighbours at Barrow, 100 miles away.

We had left Wainwright in the
evening in order to give our sled
deer in their shaggy winter coats,
the benefit of the cooler hours of
night. We should not have set
covered the tundra to a depth of
several inches, and neither blizzard
nor freeze had yet packed it to good sledding. But we had not seen a white face in many months.
School was over for the year, and
the date long set for our Barrow
visit had arrived. Our grub box
was packed to overflowing with
frozen beans, bread sliced and buttered, roast reindeer, cookies, and doughnuts. Our sled deer had been brought in two days' journey from the icy Cape herd. All was in readiness. In spite of a trail that
should have kept us at home, therefore, my husband and I, with our Eskimo guide, Tautuk, had set out
—and regretted it for eight exhausting hours.

Never was sight more welcome
than the Nektuk igloos—shapeless
mounds of white from which black
stove-pipes thrust out aslant.
Along a near-by snow ridge stretched the herd, a mass of hundreds of
dun, brown and spotted deer, their
antlers silhouetted against the sky
line like a tangle of winter branches.
No human life was visible,
but out from the igloo entrances
dashed a bevy of short-legged,
sharp-eared little reindeer dogs,
disputing our approach.

"You go in here, Sevek's igloo,"
said Tautuk, as he unloaded our
dunnage before the largest mound.
"I took moss—stake out sled deer."
As Tautuk trudged away to per-
form the Arctic equivalent of car
parking, we turned to the igloo
indicated. Bent nearly double, we dragged our grub box and sleeping
bags in through a long hallway of
snow blocks, pushed under a heavy
dogskin curtain, and entered the
igloo. Coming from the glare of
sun on snow outside into the dim
light filtering through seal intest-
ine window overhead, at first we could distinguish nothing. Presently, however, we made out ceiling, walls and floor of handwoven
driftwood with, in one corner,
among a heap of skins and robes,

a huddle of sleepers. Near by a Lapp reindeer dog growled omin-
ously above her litter of pups.
And in the centre of the floor, a freshly nipped seal, its hide stripped back to expose the creamy blub-
ber underneath, awaited the next meal.

The sleepers breathed heavily on,
undisturbed, while, stooping in the
low space, we dragged our sleeping bags to one corner of the igloo.
Although we had not eaten in many
hours, sleep was the paramount
need. Stripping of outer garments,
we wriggled awkwardly into the depths of our bags. The floor was hard and very irregular. The rein-
deer hair of my bag prickled body
and sunburned face; but I fell immediately into deep sleep.

Hours later I was awakened by
the odour of boiling seal meat, and
opened one eye for a surreptitious peek. Squatting about a pan on
the igloo floor were some dozen men, women and children, conversing in low, guttural murmurs.
As I watched, Tautuk reached over
and, with the ivory-handled knife
that he carried always in his belt, separated a chunk of seal meat from the pan. Sevek's wife raised a muted outcry, forced the portion
back into the common pot, and
carefully chose a choicer portion
for her guest. Tautuk raised the
piece of half-raw meat, seized it
in his teeth and, with a deft stroke
of his short knife, slashed off a suitable bite.

An exclamation from the shrivel-
ed old grandmother turned my eyes
in her direction. She had risen
stiffly to her feet and hurried to
the seal oil lamp against the wall.
Its flame was burning low with the
yellowish tinge that indicated lack
of oxygen. Sevek's wife, Anga,
reached over and pulled the rags
from the lower end of the two-
inch ventilating pipe, and the old
grandmother skillfully built up the
wick along the rim of the oval
stone basin. Soon the flame leaped up afresh, and the lamp of seal
blubber above it began dripping
rapidly into the bowl. Light,
warmth and the fumes of burning
seal oil filled the igloo.

Unable longer with my empty
stomach to endure the mingled
odours, I drew myself to a sitting
posture. At once all eyes turned
in my direction. Then all faces
broke into smiles and a chorus of
guttural delight greeted us.
Eagerly they crowded about the sleeping bags to shake our hands.

Anga hurried to a seal skin line
my fur garments. Mittens, socks
and boots had been turned inside
out, carefully dried, of melting
snow and perspiration, and rubbed
soft and pliable as velvet. A rip
in one fawn skin sock had been
mended with tiny parallel stitches
of sinew, and a tear in the parka
sleeve had been neatly patched.
Thus, from our earliest recorded
history has the igloo hostess cared
for her transient guest.

An hour later, fed, warmed,
rested, with fresh deer, we were
once more on our way to Barrow.
Travel was now slightly better,
30-below-zero temperature and a
strong wind having packed the
loose snow and tightened the crust.
We travelled, too, for a great part
of the night upon the frozen sea.
Here the deer stretched out their

OUR SILLY SYMPHONY

By Horatio Borg, Millionaire

This pointed allusion by owners
of missing dogs to an unorthodox
diet being practised in Hongkong,
has given us the very idea—and a dreadful one.

Ring the bell in our palatial
Peak mansion we send for the chef
whom we brought back from our last pleasure trip to Paris.

"Alphonse," we ask "have you got anything to do with these missing dogs?"

He deprecates the suggestion
with a characteristic shrug of his shoulders.

"Rien de tout," he replies.

"All right, Alphonse; you are acquitted."

A well-meaning fellow is Alphonse, the best cook it is possible
to get anywhere. He does everything with the best of intentions,
but there have been times when
ment.

Take, for instance, the dinner we gave on our last birthday.

Having the previous day accumulated another cool million on a favourable turn of the exchange;
this with no other effort than being
wheeled into it in a 3 coolie-power
ricksha, we thought the occasion a
jolly good one for boosting our
luck and the sumptuous appointments of our table. We were to be favoured also with the cream of Hongkong society—tailors and Civil Servants.

The morning of the banquet,
therefore, we sent for Alphonse.

"I want you to make to-night's your very best effort," we told him.

If anything, Alphonse is a master
in his own line. You may prate of
your portrait masterpieces, and your Frimms may keep the best they can compose of the enchanting
beauties of Hongkong, but Alphonse
has his own artistic conceptions of
cuisine.

In his hands an ordinary enough
steak is transformed into something surpassingly sublime—a perfect symphony of culinary perfection, to be approached with reverence rather than with gusto.

For this our birthday banquet we
gave him "carte blanche," and he promised us a whole opera.

What the nature of the various compositions were we had then not
the foggiest notion as they were
to be shown in French on the
menu—a la this and a la that, you know. But it was evidence of our
perfect trust and faith in Alphonse, the fact that we left
their entire selection to him, with
only the proviso that they must in any event be substantial.

The banquet turned out to be a signal success. The wines were
good, and Alphonse's well-varied
collations were all enjoyed, the
more so, we take it, because everything was a surprise. If they could do so without breaking good
form, we believe the guests would have been loud in their praise.

The newspapers, in reporting it,
also did us the honour of including it amongst the most brilliant social functions of the season, and we
wondered what the Smiths and Joneses, who were not invited,
would think of it.

The next day we sent for Alphonse to congratulate him on his masterpiece. Pointing to
"grenouille" in the previous night's
dinner card, we remarked that the chicken was particularly good.

"But 'M'sieur,' he interjected,
"that was not chicken: it was zee
ah—"

Not here getting the right word, Alphonse gave a spasmodic leap to demonstrate what he wished to convey.

"FROGS! You have not been feeding us with frogs, have you,
Alphonse?" we asked in dismay.

Alphonse spread out his extended hands. "Mais oui," he asserted.

Ever since that day we have insisted on these symphonies being
explained to us before allowing Alphonse to compose them.

"Don't you see, M'sieur? Deducting those eggs you borrowed from me yesterday, I only owe you 50 cents."

WITHDRAWN*PLANS FOR PARLEY

Peking, Jan. 28.
A portion of Japanese troops stationed at the east of Tungchatao withdrew five miles to the east yesterday afternoon, and a number of Japanese planes frequently flew over Kuyuan and Tushikow, but without dropping bombs.
These were the main features of the Charhar border activities throughout yesterday. The foremost line held by the Japanese troops has been already moved beyond the disputed area, but the Chinese garrison forces are holding their original position in the eastern Charhar border area.
Colonel Matsui, Chief of the Japanese Military Mission at Kalgan, arrived at Chengteh yesterday afternoon by air from Chinchow.
A final decision was expected, at a conference he held with General Sugihara at the Chengteh Japanese Military Headquarters last night, regarding the proposed Sino-Japanese Conference to be held for the settlement of the Charhar-Jehol border dispute.—Central News.

Shanghai, Jan. 28.
Mr. Ariyoshi, Japanese Minister to China, proceeded to Nanking to-night to pay an official visit to the Chinese authorities. He was accompanied by Mr. Arino, Counsellor of the Japanese Legation. His present visit to the Chinese capital is merely in connection with routine business.—Central News.

London, Jan. 28.
Admiral Yamamoto, and other Japanese delegates and experts to the London naval conference recently abandoned, left for Tokyo to-day, via Moscow.—Reuter.

Saar Force Departure*DATE NOT YET FIXED*USEFUL WORK

London, Jan. 28.
The actual date on which the International Force will leave the Saar has not yet been fixed.
The Foreign Secretary, Sir John Simon, answering a question in the Commons, said the various contingents were expected to leave at the same time as the Governing Commission handed over the territory to the German authorities. The arrangements, it was understood, would be discussed with the Commander-in-Chief, the Governing Commission and the Saar Committee of the League of Nations Council.—British Wireless.

QUIET EFFICIENCY

London, Jan. 28.
The British troops in the Saar had maintained their reputation for quiet efficiency, said the Financial Secretary of the War Office, paying a tribute to these men in the House of Commons to-day.

They had been careful, good-humoured and always had shown complete impartiality. Although they kept in the background, their presence had been an important factor in an anxious situation. They had carried out their usual duties in a spirit worthy of the best traditions of the Army.—Reuter Special.

Nanking, Jan. 28.
Dr. W. W. Yen, Chinese Ambassador to Moscow, who has been on a long furlough at home, arrived at the capital last evening for the purpose of asking instructions from the Central Government before his return to Moscow.
When interviewed he said that after much hesitation he was at last persuaded to return to his duties at Moscow. He would catch the same steamer for Moscow with Mr. Mul Lan-fang, the noted Chinese actor, who will undertake a theatrical tour to Soviet Russia at the invitation of the Soviet Government.
Dr. Yen will probably start on his journey late in February.—Central News.

ANXIOUS FOR PACT*STRIVING FOR NAVAL TREATY*REASSURED
BY JAPAN

London, Jan. 28.
Reviewing the results of the recent preliminary bilateral naval conversations in London, the Prime Minister, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, in the House of Commons to-day, said they had fully served the purpose for which they were intended; namely, to enable the Governments concerned to understand their respective problems and viewpoints, and discuss a number of tentative suggestions for overcoming existing difficulties.
This process would continue through diplomatic channels and as soon as the situation developed so as to justify resumption, appropriate steps would be taken by His Majesty's Government.
Since adjournment the Japanese Government had given formal notice to terminate the Washington Naval Treaty. The British Government had realised for a long time that the prolongation of the treaty beyond 1936 would be contrary to the wishes of the Japanese Government; but he felt it to be only consonant with the frank and friendly spirit which always characterised relations between the two countries to say that the decision of the Japanese Government in this matter had been received here with a sense of regret for the treaty had, during its term, served an invaluable purpose of avoiding naval armament competition with all its attendant evils of ill will and extravagance, and the British Government would regard it as a matter of grave concern if there should be a failure to negotiate, before the Washington agreement terminated, for a new arrangement limiting and regulating the future construction of naval armaments.

SATISFACTION

It was therefore with great satisfaction that His Majesty's Government noted the assurance made to them by the Japanese Government that they had no intention whatever to proceed to naval aggrandisement or to disturb international peace, but would continue rather to make sincere endeavours to strengthen the relationship of peace and amity among all powers by participating as heretofore in friendly negotiations with other powers concerned, and that they would strive for the conclusion with those powers of a new agreement which was fair, adequate and just in conception, and consonant with the spirit of disarmament, to replace the Washington Treaty.—British Wireless.

New York, Jan. 28.
The Bureau of Statistics report that the 1934 world silver production was 180,501,000 ounces, which is the highest since 1930.

These figures compare with 161,300,000 ounces for 1933, and 169,300,000 ounces for 1932.

The United States registered the largest gain which was 26 per cent., Mexico gained 9 per cent., and Canada 3 per cent.

In December the United States production was 2,917,000 ounces, a gain of 941,000 ounces over November, and the largest monthly gain since March, 1931.

The December production of Mexico was 4,400,000 ounces, that of Canada 1,187,000 ounces.

World silver production for December was 16,204,000 ounces.

Imports of refined silver into the United States for December are reported as 10,902,000 ounces, while for the whole year 1934, 141,747,000 ounces were imported, which compares with 141,078,000 ounces for the year 1933.

Imports of foreign silver coins dropped sharply during December, amounting to $1,207,266 compared with $3,120,886 in November which was the highest during the year.

The sharp drop in imports of silver coins is attributed to the dwindling of Chinese exports of coins as a result of the export duty.—United Press.

London, Jan. 28.
Mr. Alan Chorlton, Unionist M.P. for Manchester, to-day asked in the House of Commons whether there had been any improvement in British trade in consequence of the work of the Barnby Mission.

Sir John Simon, the Foreign Secretary, replied that no information was yet available.

The only recent statistics relating to the first three months of 1934 showed an increase of 52 per cent. in trade in terms of local currency, compared to a similar period of 1933, said Sir John.

Mr. Chorlton asked: "Does the Right Honourable gentleman think there is little chance of increasing our trade with Manchuria?"

Sir John replied that he hoped the efforts of the Barnby Commission would not be entirely fruitless.—Reuter.

Paris, Jan. 28.
Abatement of the bullish wave on foreign exchanges regarding the possible revaluation of the American dollar, is arousing widespread interest here.
In the opinion of the market experts, the fact that the Bank of France has been selling dollars in large amounts and is apparently willing to continue this policy, is taken as a sign of confidence on the part of the French authorities in the stability of the gold value of the dollar.

The Bank of France, it is pointed out, would be reluctant to part with any large portion of its dollar holdings at present if there were any likelihood of the dollar being restored to its old parity.—Reuter.

The conference here to-day indicated that the question of stabilisation will probably be debated in London.—United Press.

Final Ladies' Hockey Trial

By R.H.B.

It is understood that Miss Iris Woolley, the St. Andrew's Club right half-back, who has been playing very well at left half in the Interport trial and practice matches, is to be given a try out at left back in the Colony team at Sookunpoo this afternoon.

Miss M. Remedios, of the Recreio, will again be seen in action on the left wing. She has been nursing an injured hand and has not taken part in the last two trials. On her play, though, she has proved herself a worthy candidate for the left wing vacancy.

For the position of left back, Miss F. Walker, Miss B. Helbling and Miss A. Fowler have already been tried, while Miss P. Gillins and Miss O. Brown have been tested for left wing.

The Shanghai Ladies arrive on Friday and a week from to-day the Interport match—the first in the history of local ladies' hockey—will be played. The selectors will have to make their final selections to-day or it will be leaving matters too late.

Boy Beats A Billiards Record

By FRANK POXON

London, Jan. 3. A little boy of 14 made a break of 130 yesterday afternoon in the semi-final of the Boys' Championship of billiards at the Burroughes Hall.

He did it in just less than a quarter of an hour.

The boy, Donald Cruickshank, of South Shields, looked the "complete player."

His opponent was H. Stokes, of Glasgow. Both boys were knickerbockers.

This 130 break is a record for the Boys' Championship, the previous best, in this event, being 114 by R. Gartland when playing in the final against Sidney Lee—now a professional—in 1926.

Cruickshank played great billiards while making his record break. His losing hazards were perfect, the plumb centre of the pocket being found nine times out of ten.

That was just good—very good—stroke play, but I was even more impressed by the knowledge shown by Cruickshank of the technique of break-building. He always picked out the right shot when there was an alternative. This North Country lad has a brain as well as a cue.

LIKE A PISTON-ROD

His cue action was exactly right, his arm going back like a piston-rod in its precision.

POLICE HOPES

BRIGHTER and brighter are becoming the prospects of an all-Chinese Senior Shield final. Saturday's results determined the appearance in the semi-final of Chinese Athletic and South China "B." If South China "A" beat the Club in the second round, the last four will include three Chinese teams. The luck of the draw, in fact, will make possible a second precedent; the appearance in the final of two teams from the same club. South China "A" have an odds-on chance of

As I See It—
By "Veritas"

defeating the Club, and if they can escape their junior outfit in the draw, the betting prospects of the two Caroline Hill teams contesting the final would be even.

THE DRAW FACTOR

AN all-Chinese Senior Shield final is not yet on record. South China, in 1929 and again in 1931, when they had but one team entered in this competition, won the trophy, and are, in fact, the only Chinese club to have their name inscribed on the shield. The striking display of Chinese Athletic against the Recreio on Saturday has sent Chinese Senior Shield stock soaring, and only the Police (and possibly the Club) stand in the way of a new record. So far as South China are concerned the draw will mean everything. If, in the event of their surviving the second round, South China "A" meet the Athletic, and the "B" the Police, the chances of the club supplying the finalists will be enhanced. South China "B" are more likely to beat the Police than the Athletic, who, on form, play the same time of game as the South China youngsters, but slightly better. On the other hand I think South China "A" will generally overcome the Athletic because they have a trick or two up their sleeves.

POLICE PROSPECTS

It should not be thought by the foregoing that I have eliminated, as possessing no chances, the Police and Club. Both teams are capable of beating any of the three Chinese combinations; the Police more especially than the Club. But current form is current form, and as the South China teams appear to be playing as well in the Shield as they are in the League, and the Athletic above league form, there is a slight balance in favour of the Chinese.

The Club, of course, have something of a traditional Shield record. That is to say they have won the trophy five times since its inception in 1897. But their

BOXING CHAMPIONS & CHALLENGERS

(By Fred Dartnell)

During the year just ended there have been several changes in the boxing championships.

Len Harvey, who held two titles at the beginning of 1934, is now without either. The only two champions who have retained their honours all through the year are Jackie Brown, the flyweight, and Jack McAvoy, king of the middle-weights.

Both, you will notice, belong to Lancashire, which county, according to my friend Percy Rudd, is going to carry off the Rugby championship honours this season.

Lancashire have had a pretty good year in recent years with regard to the boxing championships.

Two of the titles, the bantam and cruiser-weights, are vacant at present, but in the meantime they do say, and with very good reason, that Johnny King is the uncorrupted monarch of the division.

When Dick Corbett automatically lost his title, through getting too heavy, King remained, and to be frank I do not see anybody else good enough at 8st. 6lb. to beat him.

LIKE TANCY LEE

Jackie Brown is eager to defend his championship as soon as possible, but before that occurs Tommy Pardee and Benny Lynch have to battle out an eliminator.

Pardee, a sturdy fighter, comes from Birmingham and has won heaps of amateur honours, while in Scotland they liken Lynch to Tancy Lee, which is good enough praise for any boxer of to-day.

I think, however, that Brown will keep on his throne. He, McAvoy and Petersen represent the best class amongst our championship holders.

No Tarleton may expect some troublesome times ahead from such feather-weight rivals as Dick Corbett, Dave Crawley, Benny Caplan and Ginger Foran.

The first two are more likely than not to be sent to bring the title back to London.

Kid Berg is not destined to remain very long at the top of the light-weights, I fancy. Quite a formidable number of eliminating bouts—five, to be precise—have been arranged by the Board of Control to find a challenger for Berg, whose predecessor, Mizler, is to try a "come-back" also.

Pat Butler is the new welter-weight champion, but I think Dave

McCleave will take the honours before long. In the middle it is a case of McAvoy on his own, although Al Burke is the official challenger.

We shall have the cruiser-weight problem settled by Tommy Farr (Wales) and Eddie Phillips (London) at Mountain Ash on Feb. 4, the date on which Petersen meets Walter Neusel at the Albert Hall.

I shall always remember Mountain Ash and its rather grim atmosphere for the historic fight I saw there, when Jim Driscoll and Francis Rossi met before some thousands of the mining fraternity.

Tancy Lee was there too, and sat in the Press box amongst the scribes, who were amused by his quaint comments on the scrap.

During a football match between Llandudno and Aberystwyth in a Mid-Wales League fixture at Aberystwyth the police rescued a player from the crowd, which broke on to the field.

When Pritchard (Aberystwyth) robbed the international player, Jack Lloyd, of the ball he fell and some of the crowd declared that he was kicked on the knee.

It was then that the crowd rushed on to the field and Lloyd was struck several times before the police escorted him to the dressing room. He returned to the field, but throughout the remainder of the game he was subjected to cat-calling and booing.

At the close of the match the crowd again attempted to get at Lloyd when he was leaving the field surrounded by police and when he reached his hotel there was a hostile demonstration.

BIG BADMINTON MATCH TO-MORROW

ELIOT HALL AND THE RECREIO

VARSIITY TEAM FAVOURED

COURT ADVANTAGE

(By "Veritas")

Recreio "A" meet Eliot Hall in the first division men's doubles to-morrow, and it is anticipated that Poffulham will be invaded by numbers of enthusiasts anxious to see the two strongest teams in this division in conflict.

Both are as yet undefeated, and there is no questioning the fact that the championship rests between them. The Eliot Hall team, comprising Hongkong University men, most of whom learnt their badminton in Malaya, have, in the course of the last two seasons, recorded wins against the Recreio in friendly matches.

Since then, however, the Portuguese have made tremendous strides, and are certain to offer brilliant opposition to the Varsity players.

COURT ADVANTAGE

The advantage of playing on their own court, which has a somewhat low ceiling, thus nullifying lobs, may be the determining factor in favour of Eliot Hall. The players themselves adopt the short game and as a team have no equals in the Colony in this type of play.

Against this the Recreio have well controlled but highly developed speed, and are particularly severe overhead.

The match should provide interesting and spectacular entertainment, and it is unlikely that either team will win by more than the odd game.

Owing to the desire of the players to watch this match, the "B" Division game on Wednesday between Recreio "B" and the Victoria Recreation Club has been mutually postponed.

NAVY RUGBY

Medway & Suffolk Fail To Score

A rugby game between the Medway and the Suffolk at Happy Valley yesterday resulted in a draw, both teams failing to score.

C. Smith at full back was the outstanding player for the Suffolk, and Willis also put in some good work.

Amongst the Medway representatives Sh. L. Knox was the pick, and the forwards all played a good game, in contrast to the Suffolk pack who put up a rather poor showing.

The teams were:—
Medway:—A. B. Smith; Tel. Morris, A. B. Gatum, E. R. A. Heywood, St. Morgan; Sub. Lt. Knox, A. B. Loxham, E. R. A. Hall, A. B. Haines, A. B. Owens, A. B. Parker, A. B. Walker, A. B. Courtney, A. B. Fisher, L. Sm. Overton.

Suffolk:—C. Smith; St. Price, St. Jones, A. B. Mathews, St. Murphy, St. Neasey; A. B. Thornton, Mech. Willis, St. Haines, A. B. Cruickshank, Sgt. Richards, A. B. Hughes, A. B. Finder, St. Allingham, A. B. Wilson.

The following are the results of the second round of the Junior Championship:—
C. H. Burton beat R. L. S. Webb 5 and 1.

H. Hampton beat J. W. Mayhew 2 and 1.

Capt. Michell beat J. Harrow 4 and 3.

Petersen Engaged To Beauty Of Eighteen

London, Jan. 3.

Jack Petersen, the 23-year-old British and Empire heavy-weight boxing champion, is engaged to Miss Betty Williams, aged 18, daughter of Mr. T. Baker Williams, a retired Cardiff auctioneer and accountant.

Miss Williams, whom Petersen met at a dance 18 months ago, is of striking beauty, fair, and of medium height.

HATES TO SEE HIM HIT

She is not fond of boxing, and though the couple have been much about together for a long time, she has watched only two or three of his fights.

"I cannot bear to see him hit," she said; and, when he has been punished in the fights she has watched, she has covered her face with her hands.

Women's Olympic Games Condemned

"There is no mercy for the beaten athlete," said Dr. Adolphe Abrahams, addressing the British Association for Physical Training in London.

He referred to the effect on the nervous system of an athlete forced continuously to live in the limelight. "His life is one continuous anxiety," he said, "realizing that the world is a cruel place and that there is no mercy for failure."

"I speak from experience. The people only remember that he was beaten. With that anxiety continually before him, day and night, is there any wonder that symptoms of overfatigue through the nervous system must occur?"

MUCH WORSE FOR WOMEN

He (Dr. Abrahams) would expect it to be much worse in the case of the girl or young woman.

He visualised a higher type of nervous system much less likely to stand up against the same strain—the hero worship, adula-

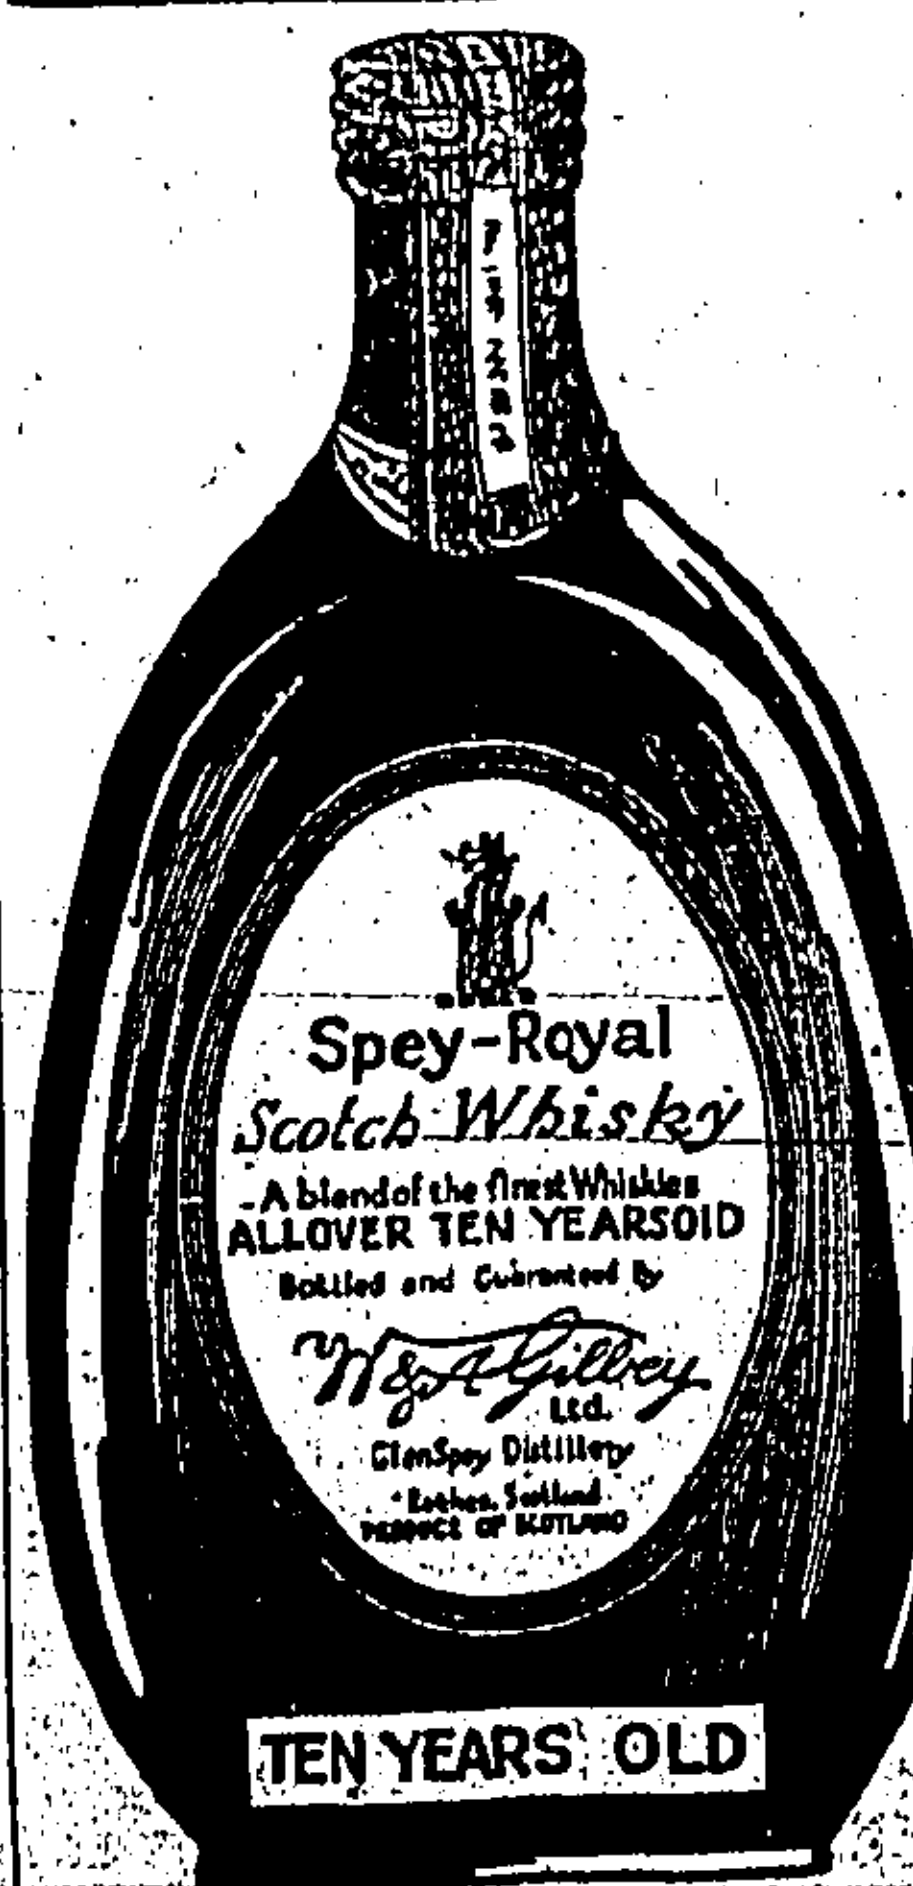

tion or other circumstances of violent competition.

For that reason he had never hesitated to speak against Olympic games for women, and he was strongly against the highly competitive lawn tennis.

He confessed that he might be wrong, and spoke of a woman doctor who had told him that he was, and said that she held that women on the whole were more flexible and adaptable than men.

"I may be perhaps old-fashioned," Dr. Abrahams said, "but I must say that when I visualise the appearance of collapse and exhaustion in a male an unpleasant enough spectacle in some circumstances, I cannot bring myself to believe that it cannot be worse in the case of a woman."

Speaking of smoking by athletes, he said so far as he could see there was no clear evidence of tobacco having had any degenerative effect.

335 RUNS FOR 7TH WICKET

Sydney, Jan. 3. C. W. Andrews and E. C. Bensted established a new Australian record here to-day with a seventh-wicket partnership of 335 runs for Queensland against New South Wales in a Sheffield match. This is only nine runs short of world record.

Andrews played a brilliant innings of 253. He hit 26 fours during a stay of nearly seven hours.

Bensted's contribution to the partnership was 155, which contained 19 fours. He was concerned in the previous record for the seventh wicket, with K. Mossop, four years ago, when Queensland played South Australia.

To-day the New South Wales bowling was weak. The absence of O'Reilly and McCabe was sorely felt, and with runs coming freely in all parts of the field the "Hillites" began to voice their feelings.

They called on Oldfield to send for Miss Palmer, the New South Wales girl who took 7 wickets for 18 against England recently in the first women's Test match.

ALL-CHINESE SHIELD FINAL?

Last success was in 1922, and with such a long blank period intervening, the record can hardly be expected to provide inspiration. The Police are in a similar position. They have won the Shield once before (in 1920), but of the two teams to-day I prefer their chances to those of the Club. The Police play that type of football which is more likely to reap success in knock-out competitions than in league ties. In modified form it is allied with the style of game which earned the Borderers such a rich crop of achievements. It can be described as neat, but not gaudy, robust, but not ruthless. Properly exploited it can upset anything else; the adoption of one phase without the other is next door to the suicidal.

Shortly following this advice the partnership was broken by Chilvers, the slow bowler beating Bensted.

Goalkeeper Accused Of Manslaughter

An incident at a football match had a sequel at Swansea police court, when Charles Donovan, one of the goalkeepers, was accused of the manslaughter of Edward Thomas Cole, a player on the opposing side. Donovan pleaded not guilty.

Cole died after a football match at Swansea, on Dec. 19, between Cwm Athletic and South Wales Transport A.F.C.

Donovan was goalkeeper for Cwm and Cole was a member of the other team.

Edward John Morris, a spectator, who said he was standing near the goal post, and Cole accidentally kicked Donovan, and that then the latter told Cole that he would "have it in for him."

Later, he said, Donovan ran out from the goal straight at Cole and struck him with his fist. Both players fell. Cole died in Swansea Hospital two days later.

Witnesses for the defence attributed Cole's death to an accident.

William James Gwyn, the referee, said he only saw Donovan fall on Cole in the course of play.

"FRIENDLY GAME"

Police-constable Daniel Thomas said

Donovan volunteered a statement to the effect that the game proceeded in quite a friendly way and, when the ball was dropping about three yards away, he ran and dived for it, falling flat on his face.

When he got up he found the opposing player under him. Cole told him he felt "groggy," but that it could not be helped.

MACAO VICTORY

Beat Royal Corps Of Signals

Visiting Macao on Sunday, the Royal Corps of Signals were defeated by five goals to nil by the Macao Hockey Club. Angelo netted the first goal, while Tannuho, who played a brilliant game at centre-forward, scored the remainder.

"BODYLINE" NOW DEAD

Sydney, Jan. 3. The Australian Board of Control has decided to make no comment on the bodyline incident mentioned in Mr. Bushby's, the Australian manager's, report to it on the Australian tour of this year.

In his report Mr. Bushby read a letter from the M.C.C. containing an apology from the Nottinghamshire Cricket Club for the manner in which Voce bowled against the Australian team.

After considering this, and Mr. Bushby's confidential report, the board decided to make no comment at all. "So far as we are concerned," said Mr. W. H. Jones, the secretary of the board, "the matter is over."

The Board has deferred its consideration of the new lb.w. rule, put forward by the M.C.C., until its next meeting.

It acceded to the M.C.C.'s request that the team to tour Australia during the 1935-37 season should leave Australia a week earlier than did the 1932-33 team, for the purpose of visiting New Zealand.

A sub-committee was appointed to consider, and report to the Board, what recommendations should be made by the Board to the M.C.C. with regard to the duration of future Test matches in England. Consideration will be given to the following conditions:

- (1) Conditions as played this year.
- (2) Playing all Tests to a finish.
- (3) Extending the first four Tests to five days and playing the fifth to a finish if, at the end of the fourth, the difference of matches won is not greater than one.

Mr. Jones announced that the reports of the manager and treasurer had been considered, and that the Board had arrived at various recommendations as regards the conduct of tours for future consideration.

It was announced at the close of the meeting by Mr. Jones that W. M. Woodfull, captain of the Australian team, had been asked by the Board to submit, in writing, any views he may have had in connection with the tour which he might like to bring to their notice, as the Board intended to attend the next meeting at Melbourne should it be considered advisable. Woodfull did not submit any statement.

The Board allocated a further sum of £5,000, the remainder of the profits of the tour in England this year, less the amount taken for working expenses, to the States, bringing the sum granted up to £26,000. The next meeting of the Board will be held in September at Melbourne.

MUI-TSAI NOT REGISTERED

GIRL COMPLAINS OF BEING SLAPPED

A fine of $30 was imposed upon Lau Sui-sam, aged 38, a married woman, of No. 40 Fuk Wing Street, when she appeared before Mr. E.

W. Hamilton at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning, on a charge of keeping an unregistered mui-tsai, named Ho Ngan-nui, alias Lai Mui, aged 17.

The charge was brought against the defendant as the result of a complaint made by the girl to the Secretariat for Chinese Affairs on Saturday morning. The girl alleged that she was slapped on the face by the defendant because she would not return to the country, as she was afraid of being resold.

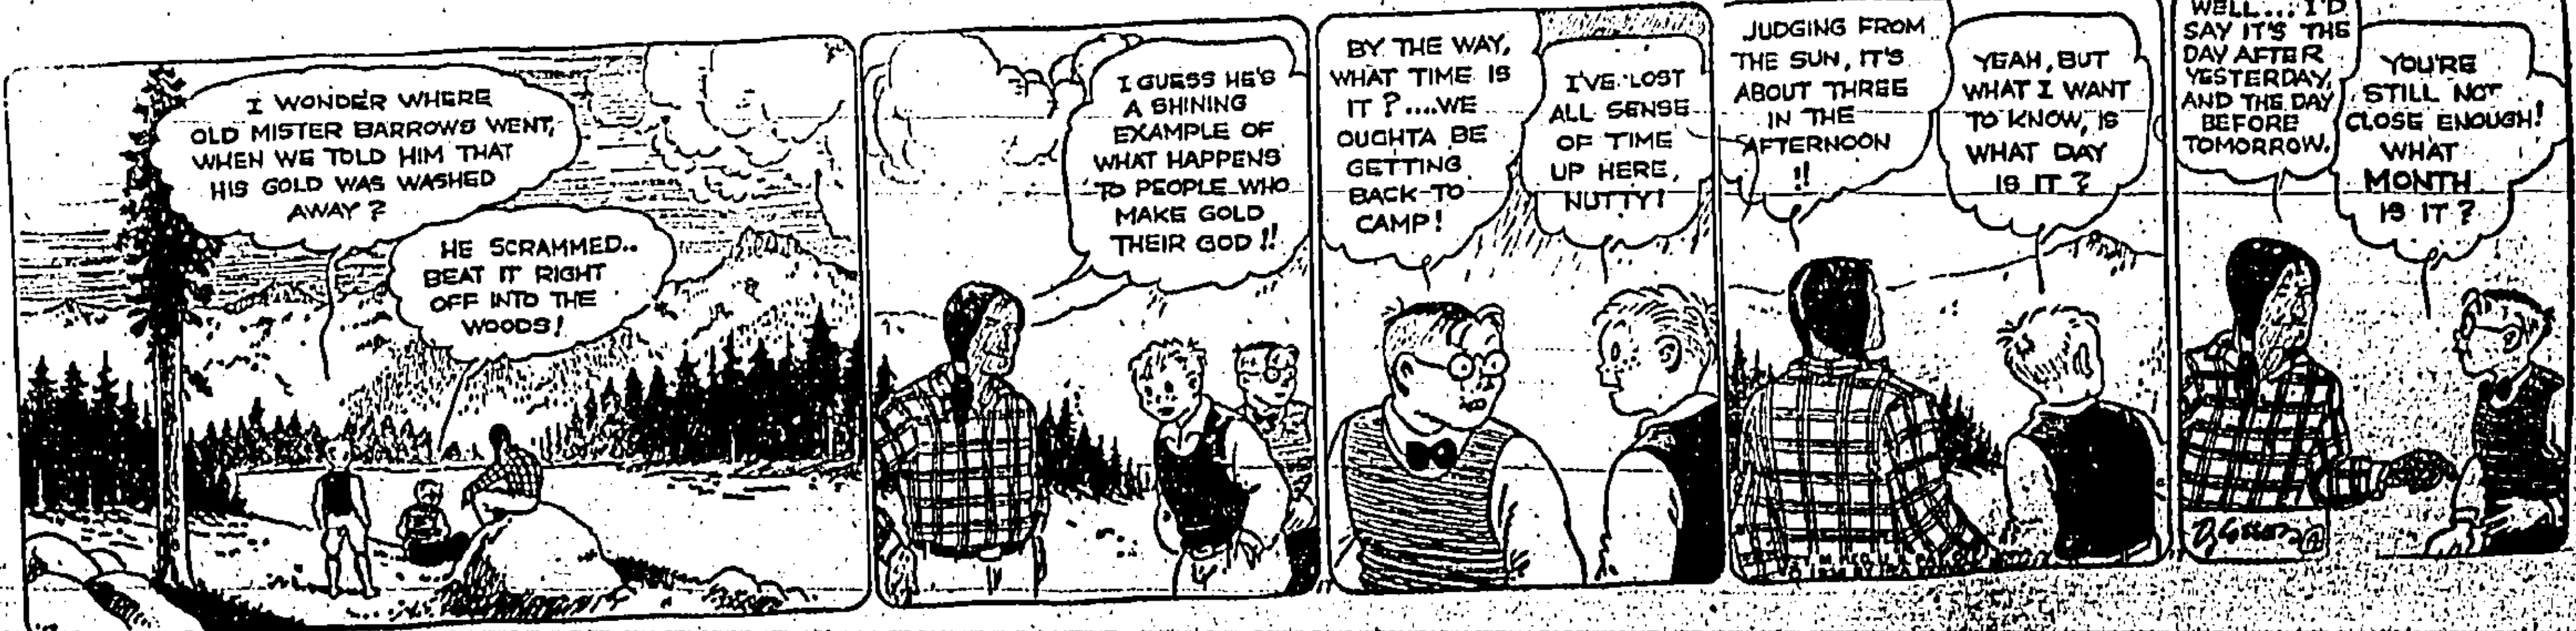

About 11 years ago the girl was presented to a family, the head of which decided to resell her in Hongkong, so the girl's mother prevailed upon the defendant to take the girl, which she did, paying the mother $35.

Inspector H. W. Fraser, of the Secretariat for Chinese Affairs, appeared for the prosecution.

CHAPTER XXVII

Carol Kendall spoke to the chauffeur, driving the car. "With so much room in front, I don't know why I must stay back here."
The young man at the wheel drove on stubbornly. There was determination in the set of his shoulders. He made no reply.

Carol sat back, smiling. When she reached her destination, a handsome residence, she said carelessly, "Come for me at one to-night."
"But I understand," he said.

"You understand that I was staying the night with Virginia Lee. Well, I'm going to her party but I am not spending the night."
"Yes, Miss Kendall. I'll tell your mother, miss."

"You are not to tell my mother. I'll tell her myself when I reach home."
"Very well, Miss Kendall."

"You're not quite human are you?" The blond young chauffeur merely bowed, turned the car and drove away.

About 12 o'clock Carol, passing her friend, said carelessly, "Virginia, I don't think I should stay to-night. Mother hasn't been well. I've phoned to have the car sent for me."

"I'm sorry, but you shouldn't have phoned for the car. Some of us would have run you out."
"There is no reason to take anyone from the party."

A little later, with her evening wrap drawn about her, Carol was being driven home. Presently she said, "Stop the car. This time she added, "Please. We might as well talk this out."

"This is so much better," she said a moment later, seated beside the young man at the wheel.
There was no reply.

"You are very uncommunicative," Carol persisted. "I don't believe I have ever known anyone more so. Is your name really Lawrence?"

"Yes."
"One shouldn't call a chauffeur Larry?"

"Certainly not."
"Then I shall call you Larry."

They drove a few minutes in silence and then Carol said slowly, "Of course you know I arranged this so I could drive with you. Don't pretend you don't. Drive any place you want, Larry, but don't take me home."

"You are out of your head to do such a thing," the young man spoke roughly but the car was turning from the familiar route.

"I couldn't bear going on like this any longer," Carol said.

"I couldn't bear to see you playing chauffeur and believing you were so fooled. What college did you attend, Larry? And why the masquerade?"

"What difference does it make?" "It makes a lot of difference to me," Carol said. She tumbled on bravely, gamely, "because, you see, I care."

The car's speed was checked. It stopped suddenly and Carol was in his arms.

"We're both crazy, Carol. I should have gone away."

"I can't believe you really love me. Anybody as wonderful as you."
"Wonderful? I disgraced my people in college. I couldn't get a decent job. My voice was hoarse with misery."

"Everything will be different now," Carol said. "Oh, Larry, I never dreamed it would be like this!"

"I tell you, it's impossible. My family is poor, Carol. I couldn't marry you."

"I know you'll take care of me," Carol said happily. "But if I knew you couldn't I'd marry you just the same, Larry. I'd scrub or cook or anything to be near you."

There was only one way to answer that.

Don Kendall drove past the big family car in the shadow of the porte cochere and then stopped his roadster in amazement. Two people were inside, so engrossed they had not noticed his approach. He leaned out and walked slowly toward the other car.

The door opened and the chauffeur stepped out. He opened the door on the other side for Carol.

Don said angrily, "What in hell does this mean?" and advanced threateningly. "Why you insolent!"

"Don," said Carol in a low voice, "you'll wake Mother. I'll explain later."

"Explain spooning with Lawrence?" "Larry, please go now," Carol said. "Let me handle this."

She watched the chauffeur disappear in the darkness.

"Come inside," she whispered to her brother.

Inside the great hall, they faced each other. "To-morrow I'll thrash him within an inch of his life and send him packing," Don said.

"Don't be absurd," Carol said. "He played football at college. On Don, are you blind?" Didn't you know he wasn't a real chauffeur? You'd be surprised if I told you who he is. But I'll tell you this much. He was mentioned for All-American. Another year he probably would have made it."

"So that's his story," sneered Don. His voice rose angrily. "The dirty crook!"

Recognized him," Carol went on. "I went to school with his sister. He had heard of me, too, which gave him the idea of getting a job. After a while it was a question of taking any job he could get or stop eating. And he wouldn't go home because his father had been hard with him."

"Lord, you're gullible!" "Don—Carol!" Mrs. Kendall's fretful voice came from the head of the stairs. "What in the world are you talking about?"

Carol's frightened eyes met his. "Lawrence!"

"He was immanent to me," Don said slowly. "She said I brought it on myself!"

"What was she doing or not?" Mrs. Kendall said, angrily, "how dare he be immanent? Imagine you and Carol quarrelling over a chauffeur!"

Carol and Don went up the stairs. "Please don't ask me what it was all about, Mother. I have a wretched headache. I left Virginia's because of it."

"Who brought you home?" "I telephoned Lawrence to come for me."

"Oh!" said Mrs. Kendall.

When Carol came to breakfast next morning Mrs. Kendall greeted her pleasantly. "Well, dear, how's the headache? Better?"

"Much better, thank you, Mother." "In plain, by the way, dear, you may be inconvenienced a little to-day. I let Lawrence go for his impudence to Don."

Carol put her cup down and raised her eyes calmly to her mother. "He'll probably find a job soon. He was an excellent chauffeur."

"But imagine being immanent to Don! Carol, you look a little pale." "Too much night life. I've been having these headaches for days."

"I think Dr. Rockwood should see you, dear."

"Nonsense. All he'd say would be, 'Carol, you must retire at nine for a month. No dancing, a quart of milk taken in between meals, more fresh vegetables and fruit. And maybe a little trip somewhere—somewhere in the south.' Mother, there's an ideal let me join Bess Lattimer for a few weeks in Miami. It would do me a world of good. And I'd like to awfully."

Mrs. Kendall stared in amazement. "Of course you may go if you care to. But I am surprised, Carol. You'll miss the Rutherford party and Jean's house party that you were so enthusiastic about."

"Mother, darling, how do you draw on your imagination. Imagine me being enthusiastic about Jean's house party," Carol laughed.

"I'm sure you shouldn't leave now." "But I want to. I'm bored and not well. May I wire Bess to-day?"

"I suppose so."

What a queer child Carol was. Mrs. Kendall thought. She hadn't seemed in the least concerned about Lawrence's dismissal. And it was really because last night she had thought Carol was interested in him that she'd let the one-man go.

"I'd like to get away to-morrow," Carol said.

"But you couldn't possibly!" "Why not? I have plenty of clothes. And Miami has shops."

"Of course we can do lots of things. Do you feel equal to shopping?"

"I feel fine." Colour had come back to Carol's cheeks. Her eyes sparkled.

Mrs. Kendall smiled. "You fairly take my breath away. I wish you weren't quite so impulsive."

Only a week before when Bess had written, begging Carol to join her, Carol had laughed at the idea. "Imagine! I know Miami backwards, forwards, vertically and horizontally. I'd rather die to death."

And here she was thrilled over going, entering with zest into planning for the trip. Really, Mrs. Kendall thought, Carol was difficult to understand.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

For a number of years tournament play in England was unpopular, but since development of the British Bridge League, tournaments now are almost as popular here as in America.

I have asked some of the British authorities in England to send me an interesting hand occasionally. To-day's hand was written up by Capt. Ewart Kempton, who participated in the American Bridge League tournament at Asbury Park last August. The hand was played in the Liberal Cup Tournament in a match between teams captained by Frank Nesbit and J. R. Bell.

The Bidding.

The bidding I give is the way I believe most American authorities would bid the hand. However, the English bidding was slightly different.

When West bid a spade, North overcalled with two spades. We do not believe in using a cue bid until after a suit has been shown. Also, as the hand was played in England, when a six-heart contract was reached, East doubled.

We do not double a six contract unless it is certain that the contract will be defeated, because usually, if a six contract is defeated, you will receive a good score without doubling. But if you double and they make the contract, you are bound to be below average on the board.

By doubling, we get the information that South has a four-card suit and now, when North cue bids in spades, he tells his partner quite a story. First, that he has no losers in spades; second, that he has normal support for his partner's bid and, most important of all, he is willing to try for a slam.

Due to the fact that East doubled North's club bid, and that North made a cue bid in spades, West thought that his safest opening was the singleton king of clubs, which North won with the ace.

Before attempting to ruff the club, the declarer must take two rounds of trump, and now he should lead the five of clubs. When East plays the four spot, declarer should let the trick ride, discarding a spade.

The reason is that he is perfectly willing to have the opponents win one club trick. The clubs are solid from the five to the nine spot. Two clubs can be ruffed in dummy.

If East covered with the ten spot, the declarer would ruff and would still have the same play, losing only one club trick, thereby making his contract of six-odd.

spurned the miles, moving swiftly and smoothly along the well-made trail that wound among great blocks and pinnacles of ice, deeply azure, frosted with white. At intervals we pulled up on the tundra and sat patiently waiting on our sleds while the deer pawed beneath the snow for the brittle reindeer moss which is their winter diet.

So on, hour after hour, until the second morning found us at Kokluk's Igloo.

The igloo was deserted, the family having moved southward for the spring whaling. A great cone of snow, drifted in through a torn window, occupied the centre of the floor and the ceiling glittered with frost crystals like thin fragments of broken glass. We sat on the floor about our tiny coal oil trail stove, fur-muffled, laughing and joking above steaming cups of coffee and fried bread, then shed outer garments and slipped, shivering, into our chilled sleeping bags. No anga to dry and warm my fur garments this time, I thought regretfully, settling myself to the unevenness of the drift-log bunk. But presently, turning drowsily in the comforting warmth of the fur bag that enfolds me, I saw Tautuk, crouched above the blue flame of the primus stove, holding my fawnskin socks, turned fur side out, above the heat to dry. And knew that the watchful care of the igloo dweller had not failed us.

The trail, on the third night, was the sort of which the Arctic traveller dreams. Cold and wind had packed the tundra's surface to the hardness of cement. Over this glistening white surface our sled deer swung away at the speed which makes reindeer travel at its best a sport without a rival. I closed my eyes, felt against my cheeks the weight of frost-white lashes. The cold, pure air stung my face, drove the breath back into my lungs.

I had the feeling of being rushed through empty, silent space. No more running behind the sled or tugging at the sealskin guiding line for greater speed. Scarcely four hours of travel, and we mounted the bank from beach to tundra and saw before us the white atopia of the most northerly church in the world, rising from the scattered houses and igloos of Barrow. And from their dwellings, men, women and children poured forth to welcome us to the northernmost point of North America.

BRITISH LABOUR QUESTIONS

MINISTER APPEALS FOR ADVICE

London, Jan. 28. Referring to his discussions last week with representatives of national bodies of employers and employees, relating to the possibility of absorbing more workers into employment, and including the proposal for shortening the hours of work Mr. Oliver Stanley stated in the Commons that he was sure the assistance of all who had had actual experience would be available for his guidance in the discussion which he proposed undertaking with representatives of individual industries.

Answering a further Parliamentary question, the Labour Minister said that the negotiations into which the employers' and operatives' organisations had entered, in accordance with last year's Cotton Manufacturing Industry Act with view making a new and comprehensive agreement, had now been practically completed, and he understood that a joint application for making an order under the Act would shortly be made. —British Wireless.

H.M.S. HOOD'S DAMAGE

INQUIRY BEING HELD AT GIBRALTAR

London, Jan. 28. A complete report of the damage sustained by H.M.S. Hood, which was in collision with H.M.S. Renown during exercises off the coast of Spain on January 23, has not yet been received by the Admiralty.

It is known that the Renown's stern casing is damaged, and it will possibly necessitate her return to England for repairs in due course. Meanwhile the Hood may return to England now to complete her repairs before combined exercises.

A Court of Inquiry is taking place at Gibraltar to-day. —British Wireless.

JOINT COMMITTEE MOY EXPLORE

London, Jan. 28. In regard to the petition by the Government of Western Australia to be permitted to secede from the Commonwealth, the Dominions Secretary, Mr. J. H.
